Tito Expects Harmony by Negotiation

Stresses Danger Of Arms Race

NEW YORK, June 30 (AP)—Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia, urging "active" efforts by the East and West to achieve peaceful coexistence, says he believes world leaders now have concluded that international problems can be settled by negotiation.

He said he thinks responsible statesmen also have concluded that an armaments race "can only open the possibility" of a third world war.

The 63-year-old President who broke away from the Soviet orbit in 1948 and established his own brand of communism—Titoism—was seen and heard today in a filmed TV interview by Edward R. Murrow and telecast over the CBS network.

NO QUESTIONS IN ADVANCE

The interview took place on Brioni, a small island in the Adriatic Sea off the Dalmatian coast of Yugoslavia. Also present during the discussion at Tito's villa was his wife, Mrs. Josep Broz, and an interpreter. Murrow said no questions were asked in advance.

Commenting on how best to keep peace in the world, Tito said: "I think that the best solution is coexistence. Of course, not a passive coexistence just to live one beside the other, but an active coexistence in which we should strive to solve peacefully by way of negotiation and agreement all the problems which could arise."

INTERNATIONAL ACCORD

"Now, if all those responsible for international affairs agree to the practice of solving international problems peacefully by negotiation and agreement, then there is no reason for an armaments race."

The marshal laughed when asked to comment on the prediction of Russian leaders Bulganin and Khrushchev that the grandchildren of Americans would be living under socialism.

"I wouldn't say so categorically," said Tito, "because it is up to the American people to decide what system of society it will develop and what system it would prefer."

Tame Ocelot Roams Free In Northside

Sylvester, a full-grown Central American ocelot, was roaming at large Sunday on Atlanta's northside.

The 10-pound cat, described by owner Rek Walling, 465 Loridan Dr., N.E., as a "very friendly pet," wandered away from 2116 McKinley Rd., N.E.

Walling said he was visiting friends and had chained Sylvester, a member of the leopard family, to a tree in the front yard so that the neighbors' children could play with him.

"When it started raining," Walling said, "I went out to fetch him. The chain apparently had worked loose from the tree and Sylvester was nowhere in sight."

"He's always lived in captivity and is harmless. He's an extremely friendly fellow."

John Dilbeck, Grant Park zookeeper, however, warned that ocelots, when they are cornered, "act like wildcats."

When last seen, Walling said, Sylvester was wearing a leather collar and small plastic leash, with a 10-foot chain attached to the leash.

Explosion on Sun Rocks the Earth, Stirring Atmosphere With Storms

WASHINGTON, June 30 (AP)—A great explosion on the sun struck the earth today with vast magnetic hurricanes and electric storms.

An alert was quickly flashed to 10,000 scientists around the world to make special studies of everything that happens and what it means.

Radio blackouts are expected in many places within 24 hours. Warnings were sent ships and planes which depend on radio navigation.

The solar explosion or flare erupted in perfect timing to launch the International Geophysical Year—a great head-to-toe checkup of the earth and space by scientists of 61 nations.

The 18-month "year," starting officially at 7 p.m. EST, tonight and lasting until 1959, was set at this time because sunspots and flares on the sun are expected to reach a maximum then.

"The universe itself cooperated" in heralding the vast scientific study, said A. H. Shapley, vice chairman of the IGY Committee of the National Academy of Sciences.

The sun flare, a vast geyser of gas and radiation and atomic particles, occurred two days ago. Its effects are just being felt today.

Moscow scientists cooperating in IGY first detected the flare. Sun particles and radiation are creating magnetic storms high in our atmosphere "as tempestuous as hurricanes" on earth,

Shapley said. "Electrical tempests started early today, violent racking the magnetic fields stretching out to 10,000 miles above the earth."

At 2,000 observing stations from pole to pole and across the seas, IGY scientists were ready for just such an event.

Moscow alerted IGY communications centers around the world, including the IGY World Warning Agency at Fort Belvoir, Va.

IGY is a "no secrets" full sharing of all new knowledge gained about the earth and powerful forces affecting it and human life.

Hailing its start, President Eisenhower called it a great example of "the ability of peoples of all nations to work together harmoniously for the common good."

"I hope this can become common practice in other fields of human endeavor," he said in a White House statement calling IGY "one of the great scientific adventures of our time."

Lawson Hits Vandiver on Racial Issue

Roger Lawson, retiring head of the State Highway Department and avowed candidate for governor, said on television Sunday afternoon that Lt. Gov. Ernest Vandiver has made statements showing that Vandiver favors a "middle of the road policy and gradual racial integration."

Lawson appeared as a guest of the Constitution sponsored program, "Press Gallery." He was interviewed by the Constitution's political editor William M. Bates and state Capitol reporter Bruce Galphin. Moderating the program was editorial associate George Boswell.

Also on the program was M. L. Shadburn, chief engineer of the highway department.

"I got in the governor's race on my own hook and at the urging of friends all over the state," Lawson said. "I expect no organized support in the administration, but I believe that Gov. Griffin will vote for me."

Lawson said he would spend the next 12 months "practicing law and going all over the state making as many friends as I can."

Lawson made his statement about Vandiver's policy in answer to a question by political editor Bates who asked Lawson to elaborate on his statement that Vandiver was "soft" on the question of integration.

Lt. Gov. Vandiver late Sunday

Teens Shoot Up Cars 'In the Way' of Escape

HILLSBORO, Tex., June 30 (AP)—Two of eight teenagers who escaped from the state boys' home at Gatesville, Tex., shot at private and police cars alike in a reign of terror across central Texas roadways last night.

Hill County Sheriff Ernest Brooks said Wilford Davis, 16, San Antonio, admitted firing at motorists who "wouldn't get out of the way."

One motorist, George Scott, Corsicana, was struck in the arm by a shotgun blast. A car containing the Charlie Joe Armstrong family had its radiator riddled and windshield broken by gun fire, but no one was hit.

U.S. Closes Fiscal Year In the Black

(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)
WASHINGTON, June 30 — The federal government's fiscal year ended tonight with a budget surplus estimated at slightly more than $1,000,000,000. A surplus this year, fiscal 1957, has been reasonably certain from the start, though the administration had expected a bigger one.

It was the second consecutive surplus year, and probably smaller than the first one by a few hundred million dollars. Not since 1929-30 have there been two surplus years in a row. Those were the last two of eleven in a row.

The administration would like to make it three in the years that starts tomorrow. But even the budget-cutting commotion of the past six months has not made it certain.

Assessing the effects of the commotion, officials feel it has revived emphasis on keeping expenditures under control and building up a large enough surplus to allow for a tax reduction. They lament a few of the cuts that Congress has made in the budget for the coming year, but seem to feel that the net effect of the economizing frenzy was not disastrous after all.

One budgetary truism has not changed: cuts that are made in the final months before a new year begins do not have much immediate effect on spending. This is because many of next year's programs are financed by appropriations of previous sessions of Congress.

Hotel-Roof Tub Sends Cascade Down 16 Flights

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 30 (AP)—A 5,000-gallon water tank on the Claridge Hotel roof overflowed tonight and sent a stream, like a dashing mountain brook, down 16 flights of a stairway.

W. D. Maybury, hotel engineer, said an automatic control on the tank failed. It took over an hour to find someone who knew how to shut off the pump.

The impromptu waterfall flooded the lobby's main floor two inches deep. Perspiring hotel employees not only had to labor with mop and broom, but also listen to such witticisms as, "Don't worry, it's only a local shower."

The hotel is located in downtown Memphis. There was no immediate estimate of damage.

Freighter Fire Under Control

YOKOHAMA, Japan, June 30 (AP)—A stubborn fire aboard the U.S. freighter Natalie was brought under control today after a 15-hour fight. The blaze broke out shortly after the 6,111-ton vessel arrived yesterday from San Francisco.

A U. S. Army spokesman said most of the mail in a hold to which the flames spread had been saved, but that much of it was water-soaked.

West Agrees On a New 'Open Skies'

By WILLIAM C. SEXTON

LONDON, June 30 (AP)—The major Western powers have won NATO approval of a new "open skies" aerial inspection plan that would cover Europe from Britain to Russia, authoritative sources disclosed today.

This meant the old Western plan of arctic inspection has been dropped.

After weeks of behind-the-scenes bickering, the Western powers appeared to have agreed on one basic plan for disarmament coupled with ironclad inspection provisions. West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, principal Western skeptic where the Eisenhower open skies program was concerned, today announced support in the "fullest measure" for it during an election campaign speech in Dortmund, Germany.

The West, represented by the United States, Britain, France and Canada at the five-power London disarmament talks here, was reported ready to present Russia at the next session Tuesday with a four-point all-or-nothing nuclear disarmament proposal. The plan would incorporate stiff control and inspection measures as well as a ban on nuclear tests for a "brief period" while the other points are hammered into East-West agreement.

Sources said the new inspection program which U.S. Disarmament Delegate Harold E. Stassen and French Delegate Jules Moch took to the NATO permanent council in Paris yesterday scrapped the previous proposal for a test inspection zone over the arctic.

Believed Drowned 2 Months Ago, Dazed Rector Finds Self in Church

SAN FRANCISCO, June 30 (AP)—An Episcopalian minister believed drowned in an Idaho lake two months ago returned from the dead today in San Francisco's Grace Cathedral.

The Rev. Andrews Daughters, 37-year-old rector of the Episcopal church at Pasco, Wash., said, "The last thing I remember is crawling out of a lake."

"I feel as if I was coming out of a long tunnel," he told The Associated Press.

After a tearful telephone conversation with his supposed widow, Carlene, he left by plane for Portland, Ore., and home where members of his congregation had held memorial services and started an educational fund for his four sons.

The Rev. Mr. Daughters was believed to have drowned last April 26 after his small boat was found overturned on Lake Coeur d'Alene.

Dr. Clark Lost Three Children in Hurricane

3 DAUGHTERS PERISH

Family Swept Away, Doctor Stays on Job

By A Staff Writer

CAMERON, La., June 30—Standing large in this town of many tragedies is young Dr. Cecil Clark who labored through the winds and waters unaware of the fate of his family. Three of his children died in the hurricane.

Dr. Clark, 32, the town's only doctor, is a hero to his native Cameron. He hasn't had much time to think about his own tragedy. Asked how many injured persons he had treated, Dr. Clark said:

"I just don't know. I'd say 400 to 500. We haven't kept any records. There just hasn't been time."

Dr. Clark said his wife, badly bruised and cut from her horrible experience in the hurricane Thursday, has told him how she floated 15 miles on debris and was rescued the next morning.

Dr. Clark was helping move patients from his 15-bed clinic to the Courthouse when the hurricane hit. All during Thursday night and Friday he cared for the hurricane victims without knowing whether his wife or any of their five children had escaped.

Friday night he received the news. His wife had been picked up in marshland 15 miles across Calcasieu Lake. Three daughters aged 3½ years, 2 years and 2 months, were swept away, along with a maid who helped care for them. Two of Clark's children, boys 6 and 7, were visiting their grandmother 15 miles away at Creole and survived.

"My wife said she and the other lady were trying to climb to the roof of the house with the babies when the water rushed over them," Dr. Clark said. "My wife held on, but the others were lost."

"The roof went to pieces, but my wife jumped over and grabbed another roof that was floating by. Three other people were on it. In a few minutes it began to fly

Toll Called Highest in Recent Time

By JACK NELSON
Constitution Staff Writer

LAKE CHARLES, La., June 30—Hundreds of people milled around the Calcasieu River dock here Sunday to see if any of their missing relatives were among the constant stream of bodies being brought in on boats.

The staggering death toll from Thursday's devastating hurricane has still not been determined. Meanwhile, health hazards grew.

Gov. Earl Long inspected the hurricane area during the day and said he believed "the actual count of dead and missing will go over 400."

GRUENTHER AT SCENE

Previously, Gen. Alfred Gruenther, president of the American Red Cross, toured the scene and announced:

"The loss of life is going to be higher than in any similar disaster this country has experienced in a long time."

Larry W. Stevenson, director of Civil Defense for Calcasieu Parish, said on the basis of the number of bodies accounted for so far, it seemed likely the death toll would reach 350.

Some people in the isolated areas of the jagged Louisiana coast already have buried relatives without ceremony. The bodies were creating a health problem.

COMPLETE EVACUATION

The tiny fishing village of Cameron (population about 2,500) has been completely evacuated and so have most other areas along a 50-mile stretch of the coast.

Disaster crews are cleaning up debris and working to restore sanitation facilities. Planes Sunday began spraying the area with DDT.

The bodies of thousands of cattle and other domestic animals, and herds of wild animals are strewn up and down the coastal area and are a health hazard. Clean-up crews plan to burn some of the animals and plow under others with bulldozers.

Poisonous snakes, stirred up by the hurricane and accompanying tidal wave, are hampering cleanup.

Juliet's 'Secretary' Retires After 20 Years in Tomb

VERONA, Italy, June 30 (AP)—Juliet Capulet's "secretary" retired today.

Ettore Solimani, 66, sometime sailor, school teacher and journeyman laborer, was pensioned off after 20 years in a job the city titled "curator of the shrine of Juliet." But he called himself Juliet's secretary and handled all the mail which came addressed to her.

He was the keeper of and the guide at the tomb of Juliet, one of the big tourist attractions in this walled Italian city where, according to Shakespearean tradition, the tragic and immortal love affair of the "star cross'd lovers"—Romeo and Juliet—took place.

Twenty years ago, bowing to his constant pleading the Verona City Corporation allotted a small sum to smarten up the Capulet family tomb, where Juliet lies buried, and appointed Solimani its custodian.

"I knew what I wanted," he said. "I wanted to create a shrine here in Verona to satisfy the aching need for a token of love felt by millions of young people the world over. I wanted to fill a gap in their lives, to give them a magic moment in the presence of the greatest lover of all time, a moment they could remember all their lives."

The job paid him only about $80 a month, but it brought him mail from all over the world and the Italian decoration of "Cavaliere del Lavoro"—Knight of Endeavor.

"People send letters from as far away as Alaska and Japan," he said. "Some of them are addressed only to 'Juliet's Secretary, Italy.'—but they all get to me."

Some have caused Solimani concern—such as the one he received from a young woman who said she had three times tried to kill herself for love, but that she'd changed her mind and was going to kill her husband the next time he misbehaved. "I managed to persuade her it was not a wise thing to do," he said. "not the sort of behavior of which Juliet would approve."

Senators Hit TV Network Strongholds

Say Independents Being Thwarted

By RICHARD F. SHEPARD
(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)
NEW YORK, June 30—Factors that limit competition in television broadcasting have reached "grave proportions and must be dealt with promptly and effectively," a Senate committee staff report asserted today.

The report, which will not be acted upon immediately, expressed fears that network business practices are bringing about a decline of independent production efforts. It questioned whether networks should be permitted to own as many TV stations as they do and urged a breaking up of present network control over prime evening viewing hours to allow more local and regional participation. The report also suggested that the Federal Communications Commission has the authority to directly regulate the networks and recommended that it do so.

RESULT OF HEARINGS

The findings were the result of last year's hearings on the TV industry by the committee on interstate and foreign commerce. The report covers the phase of the investigation that concerned network operations.

Kenneth Cox, the committee's staff counsel, submitted the report with the cautionary advice that it would be "premature" for the committee to make recommendations based on his findings until opinions were obtained from the FCC and the Department of Justice. Both of these agencies are also looking into network practices.

The committee, under the partnership of Senator Magnuson, a Washington Democrat, unanimously agreed to follow the counsel's advice and withhold formal approval of the report's recommendations.

Although the lack of TV stations is now the most restrictive factor in television, the staff found, solution of the matter would not resolve many of the problems inherent in the medium. Since no solution appears near, it is urgent that steps be taken to remove "artificial" restrictions to competition that have grown up since the inception of network TV, the report declared.

NETWORKS STUDY REPORTS

The American Broadcasting Co. and the National Broadcasting Co. were studying the report and had no comment. The Columbia Broadcasting System "welcomed" the report's suggestion for further study.

Half of the 100-page report dealt with option-time and must-buy practices. The former pertains to the times that network affiliates agree to devote to network programs. The latter refers to the stipulation by the network that prospective advertisers must purchase time on a certain minimum number of affiliated stations to gain a network airing. These usages, the report intimated, are akin to "black-book-ing" of motion picture films in exhibition houses. This has been declared by the courts to be in violation of antitrust laws.

The staff recommended that the peak viewing option time from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. be regulated in some manner so that non-network telecasts could be seen by maximum audiences. The report asserted that option rights "injure the public interest" because they exclude programs designed for local interest and "discourage the production of an adequate supply of independently produced programs."

Network control of these prime viewing hours prevents the independent program makers from selling their time on an equal footing, the report declared. It noted that there appears to have been a decline in the supply of "new, high-quality" films made by the independents. TV, the staff warned, must not be a purely nation-wide medium ignoring local and regional needs and "almost entirely dependent on network service."

The report noted the "excellent" network programming in general and noted that this made "any" anti-network program "unjustified." It argued that this very situation did not put the network in a disadvantageous position. The report also noted that the network's option-time allowance be curtailed.

The rear of the fuselage—er—chassis, was left propped against a 10-foot wall of the North avenue overpass near the 400 block of North Hunnicutt street, N.E. The driver, Frank N. Breaux, 28, of Marietta, walked away uninjured. Police said the northbound car veered onto the left shoulder, careened across the highway and zoomed off the wall. They said Breaux was going about 45. He was booked on charges of driving in improper lane—accident, drunk-operating, drunk on street.

Graham's Mother Joins To Extol Christian Home

NEW YORK, June 30 (AP)—Mrs. Anne Morrow Graham teamed up with her evangelist son Billy Graham tonight to explain the virtues of a Christian home to 19,200 persons at Madison Square Garden.

There were 700 people standing, and an estimated 5,000 others milled outside, unable to be admitted because of building regulations. It was the largest number ever turned away in the 46 days of the Graham crusade, a spokesman said.

Total crusade attendance thus far was set at 805,800. Graham, before he introduced his mother to the assemblage, left to speak a few words to the thousands outside. A set of loudspeakers later piped Graham's sermon outside.

"PROUDEST MOMENT"
The famed evangelist told the arena crowd it was "the proudest moment of his life" to be able to introduce his mother to a crusade audience.

Mrs. Graham, a tiny and slight woman in her sixties, spoke briefly on the merits of a Christian home. In her own case, she said, she and her husband, William Frank Graham Sr., a dairy farmer at Charlotte, N. C., did the best they could to instill a feeling for God among their children.

Billy's first introduction to the Bible, she said, occurred when he was 5. She said she taught him a line from Proverbs which states: "In all thy way acknowledge Him and He will direct thy path."

She urged parents to rear their children in the Christian faith and Bible and take them to church and Sunday school.

BASIS OF CIVILIZATION
Her evangelist son broadened the topic of a Christian home, declaring it was more than just a place of shelter.

"The home is regarded by all Christian nations as the basis of civilized society," Graham said, continuing.

"It is the laugh of the baby, the song of a mother, the strength of a father, the warmth of living hearts, light from happy eyes. Home is where the children go for comfort when they are hurt, where joy is shared and sorrow is eased."

The importance of the home, Graham said, cannot be minimized.

"Any nation can only be as strong as its homes," he said. "The greatest men of our days were not fashioned on battlefields but in the cradle at the fireside."

Graham's call tonight for "decisions for Christ" brought forth 597 persons, bringing the overall total of such decisions to 24,952 since the crusade began May 15. It concludes July 20.

Hilly Area Is Best for 'Made' Rain

Won't Work Over Plains, Panel Says

By JOHN W. FINNEY
(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, June 30—Artificial cloud seeding can increase the rainfall from storm clouds passing over mountainous or hilly regions, a special government research committee on rain-making has concluded.

The committee, however, found no conclusive evidence that artificial devices of man will substantially increase the natural precipitation from clouds over flat terrain, such as in the Plains states.

These conclusions were contained in a series of technical reports released by the Advisory Committee on Weather Control.

EVALUATE CLAIMS

The committee was established by Congress in 1953 to evaluate the widely conflicting claims then being made about the effectiveness of artificial rainmaking through seeding of clouds with chemical particles.

The technical reports may have to serve as the formal final report of the committee's investigation.

Because of the current congressional economy campaign, the committee is in a state of suspended animation.

The general findings of the technical reports were that cloud seeding can increase rainfall—under certain selected and favorable conditions. But at the same time the reports found no support for the early enthusiastic contentions that cloud seeding could double rainfall, end droughts, cause deserts to bloom or eliminate severe storms.

BEST IN MOUNTAINS

The studies found that artificial rainmaking is most effective in super-cooled clouds passing over mountainous or hilly areas. This conclusion was based on statistical analysis of rainmaking projects in the mountainous regions of the West Coast.

The analysis showed seeding of clouds during the fall, winter and spring in the West Coast area increased natural rainfall by an average of 14 per cent.

In the flat regions of the Eastern and Plains states, the studies found that seeding operations during the fall, winter and spring did not increase rainfall "a significant amount."

In-Flight Martini Costs 1,500 Gallons of Gas

OMAHA, Neb., June 30 (UP)—Henry Moore was feeling better today after a Martini toothpick caught in his throat while he was flying aboard an American Airlines plane and forced the airliner to make an emergency landing.

Moore, 45, of Tucson, Ariz., choked on a toothpick over Des Moines, Iowa. The pilot of the transcontinental flight, bound for Tucson after stopping at Chicago, decided to land at Omaha yesterday.

Moore was taken to a hospital, and the flight continued to Tucson 38 minutes later. It was en route from New York to Los Angeles, Calif.

Airline officials said 1,500 gallons of gas had to be dumped to lighten the plane for landing.

PRISONER KILLED

Policeman Shot Dead In Lockup

CHICAGO, June 30 (AP)—A 23-year-old rookie policeman and a gun-snatching prisoner were killed today in a wild shooting battle at a police lockup.

Dead were policeman Michael Lukaszewski and Lavern Jamieson, a Negro, about 30.

Lukaszewski, who was married recently and had one year on the force, was shot in the head by Jamieson.

Another policeman, Anthony Concialdi, 34, was shot in the hand as he pumped five bullets into the retreating Jamieson in the Central Detective Bureau lockup.

Chief of Detectives Patrick Dealey and Dep. Chief William Touhy gave this account of the gun fight:

The policemen were making out arrest slips on several prisoners from a North Side skid row area when Jamieson grabbed Lukaszewski's gun out of his holster and shot the officer.

Then Jamieson retreated to a corner with Concialdi in pursuit. The two wrestled in the corner until Concialdi managed to outshoot Jamieson.

Police said Jamieson was picked up in an alley when he could not satisfactorily account for his presence and the bag of bricks he carried.

Police had received a call that Jamieson threatened to throw bricks into the windows of a nearby hotel.

Martin Thinks High Court Lames Congress Probes

GOP House Leader Sees Law To Modify Ruling on FBI Files

By ALLEN DRURY
(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)
WASHINGTON, June 30—Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts, Republican leader of the House of Representatives, said today that recent Supreme Court decisions have "crippled the investigating committees" of Congress.

The former speaker predicted that the situation would "probably be corrected" by new legislation. In the meantime, he said, he thought such committees as the House Un-American Activities Committee could operate by changing their rules "to agree with the court."

Martin told questioners on the ABC-TV program "College Press Conference," that Congress would probably pass a measure to modify the court's ruling that FBI reports must be opened to defendants under some circumstances. He said this decision was "inimical to the country."

Commenting on a speech by Secretary of State Dulles in San Francisco reaffirming the administration's opposition to recognizing Red China, Martin said the statement had "cleared the atmosphere." He predicted that without major trade with the west, Communist China would "be in a very bad way" within two years.

The Republican leader said the decision of United States Steel to raise prices $6 a ton "certainly will contribute to inflation." But he said he would not favor any controls over the economy "at this time" to halt the upward spiral of prices.

"We may come to it," he said, "but I wouldn't want to say the time had come to do it."

Martin said hopes for a tax cut this year were "not so great" as they had been in January. The government's income, he said, had not been as large as expected.

Meanwhile on the Senate side of the capitol, the $34,534,229,000 Defense Department appropriation for the 1958 fiscal year that starts tomorrow comes to the floor for debate. The measure as approved by the Senate appropriations Committee carries $371,504,000 more than was voted by the House, but is still more than $1,000,000,000 under the administration's original request.

Senate committee members said their figure was acceptable to the administration. Its approval by the Senate would mean a conference committee battle with the House, which favored deeper cuts.

JONESBORO BAPTISTS MAKE CHURCH DEBT-FREE

Jonesboro Church Repays 30-Year-Old $1,000 'Gift'

JONESBORO, June 30—Dr. Seary Garrison, executive secretary of the Georgia Baptist Convention, Sunday morning accepted from the First Baptist Church of Jonesboro a gift of $1,000 in appreciation of a gift grant for this amount extended to the church over 30 years ago.

At that time, the church had no insurance. The gift grant is being repaid so that other Baptist churches in similar circumstances may benefit from the money, according to church officials.

At present the Jonesboro church is without a pastor. The Rev. John Buell, who has recently gone to a Miami, Florida, pastorate, led the church in the final removal of the debts.

The church also had a note-burning ceremony in celebration of the payment of a $33,000 debt on their educational building. Dr. Garrison commented that

Traffic Toll Rises to 9 In Georgia

The death of a New York couple near Statesboro Sunday pushed to nine the weekend death toll on Georgia highways, the State Patrol reported.

Augustus Romaine, 66, and his wife, Elsie, 45, of Long Island, N.Y., were killed when their car ran off U.S. Highway 301 near Statesboro and crashed into a bridge. Their granddaughter, Barbara Ann Hokekneet, 4, was taken to a hospital with a possible concussion.

A 3-year-old Warner Robins boy was killed Sunday afternoon when he darted from behind a parked vehicle and into the path of an oncoming car, the patrol said. The boy, Andrew R. Smith, was killed about 1:30 p.m. Sunday, the patrol reported.

Rachel David, 18, of Comer, died in a hospital Sunday of injuries suffered late Friday night when his car ran off State Highway 72. The wreck occurred in Madison County two miles east of Colbert.

Raymond R. Whittington, 41, of Barnesville was fatally injured Saturday night. He was struck by a car on U.S. Highway 41 about 2½ miles north of Barnesville. The patrol said Whittington was walking on the highway when struck.

Julian Roger Presley, 6-year-old Canton boy, died Saturday, four hours after the car in which he was riding blew a tire and overturned.

Wilborn Presley, 38, the boy's father, was critically hurt. Mrs. Presley suffered a broken back. The wreck occurred one mile north of Cumming.

Sam W. Hannah, 43, of Alma was killed 2½ miles east of Franklin on State Highway 34 early Saturday. The patrol said Hannah's car left the road and struck a bridge.

Luther Reynolds, 33, of Climax died Friday night in a head-on collision near Cairo on State Highway 111. Officers said one other person was injured.

Lamar Knight, 20, of Social Circle, was killed when his car went out of control and overturned several times in Walton County, the patrol said. The crash occurred about a mile east of Monroe on U.S. Highway 78 at about 9:30 p.m. Saturday, officers added.

49 Dead in Algeria

ALGIERS, June 30 (AP)—Bombings, ambushes and military actions left at least 49 dead and nine missing in Algeria over the weekend, French authorities reported today.

A three-cent stamp will still take your letter anywhere in the United States, but special mail services will cost more beginning Monday. Special delivery, registered, certified, business reply, and "notice-to-sender" mail will increase rates. Money orders will cost a nickel more, except the $50 to $100 ones, which will be lowered from 35 cents to 30 cents. Special delivery charges on first class mail will go up from 20 cents to 30 cents.

Georgia State Alumni Urge 4-Year Program

The Georgia State College Alumni Assn. has asked the Board of Regents to withhold selection of a new president until a four-year liberal arts program is installed at the college.

The resolution, announced Sunday, was approved by the association at its annual business meeting at Indian Creek Lodge Saturday.

Harold F. Jackson, alumni president, said the resolution urges the regents to "continue the affairs of the school with the acting president" until a four-year program is begun.

"The association feels that only by enlarging the program at Georgia State College can we attract a president of outstanding qualifications," said Jackson.

ENDORSE HARRIS

In another resolution, the alumni endorsed Dr. Rufus Harris of Tulane University to succeed Dr. George M. Sparks as president of the college. The regents and other state authorities were urged to "bend every effort" to secure Dr. Harris' services.

A final resolution instructed the president to appoint a committee of outstanding alumni to confer on these matters with the governor, the chancellor and "others in authority on the future of Georgia State College."

It was pointed out the resolutions were closely related in intent. It is understood that Dr. Harris will not consider taking over the reins of GSC as long as the college operates only on liberal arts on a two-year basis. Such a move would be a step downward for a man of his experience and background, it was pointed out.

Gov. Marvin Griffin has said he favors establishment of a four-year liberal arts course at the college.

OPPOSITION

On June 16 in a television interview, however, regent Charlie Bloch vigorously opposed the idea. Georgia State should concentrate on becoming an "outstanding business college" before

Lawson Enters the Race Well Behind Vandiver

By WILLIAM M. BATES
Constitution Political Editor

How fast can Roger Lawson run?

That's a question very much on the minds of Georgia politicians of all camps, following the formal entry of Lawson into the race for governor in next year's primary.

As of Monday, Lawson is quitting the State Highway Board, since early in the Griffin administration and as chairman for the past year, in order to qualify as a candidate in next year's race.

His opponent will be Lt. Gov. Ernest Vandiver who, although an unannounced candidate, has been running since he was elected lieutenant governor in 1954. Vandiver has made a lot of political hay in that time; he has an organization and a lot of powerful supporters already lined up.

Lawson, on the other hand, hardly figured in the gubernatorial speculation until less than a month ago. It had been thought that if he had political ambitions for next year, they were directed at the office of lieutenant governor.

CHANGED MIND

Obviously, something—or somebody—changed his mind in a hurry.

Lawson faces—and recognizes—a hard political fact of life: Vandiver as of now is well ahead. The highway chairman is going into the race the underdog.

Can he catch up? Lawson, of course, thinks he can. And he is expected to follow a two-phase campaign to try to do so.

The first phase, which will carry over into next year until time for formally entering the primary contest, will be devoted to trying to stop the Vandiver bandwagon. Lawson will try to puncture the idea that Vandiver "has it in the bag" and can't be stopped. He will try to get himself accepted as a serious challenger with a real chance of winning. He is somewhat in the same position as Adlai E. Stevenson was in last year's presidential contest.

HARD TASK

Implementation of the first phase of Lawson's strategy calls for a back-breaking task of speech-making, traveling and organizing at the grassroots level in Georgia's 159 counties.

Phase two of the Lawson strategy will commence with the formal opening of the campaign a year from now. He hopes to be able to take the stump and slug it out with Vandiver on a more-or-less even basis.

Lawson's candidacy is almost certain to produce a strain on the alliance of the political organizations of Gov. Griffin and Sen. Talmadge. Much of the Talmadge organization is clearly backing Vandiver; so is Sen. Russell's organization. Lawson expects to have the support of the bulk of the Griffin administration and organization.

The strain is going to be particularly binding on those persons who have close ties with both Griffin and Talmadge.

VACATION IN EUROPE

One man in this uncomfortable position said jokingly that his wife has been urging him to take a long vacation to Europe. He said next summer would be a good time for that.

Lawson says the big issues in the forthcoming primary will be defense of the county unit system and maintenance of segregation. Pressed by reporters, Lawson says he feels that Vandiver is "not as strong as he might be" on these questions.

Both Lawson and Vandiver long have been associated with the Talmadge faction in Georgia politics. It will be recalled that segregation and the county unit system are virtually that faction's trademarks, which helped it win undisputed control of this state's politics.

It will be ironic if segregation and the county unit system play a determining factor in a contest between the two young men with the same political background.

Services for Malon C. Courts, Investment Broker, Held Here

Funeral services for Malon Clay Courts, prominent Atlanta investment broker, were held at 4 p.m. Sunday at St. Luke's Episcopal Church.

The Rev. Wilson-W. Sneed officiated. Burial was in Westview Cemetery.

Mr. Courts, 49, was managing partner in the firm of Courts & Co. He died Saturday afternoon following a heart attack he suffered after playing two sets of tennis at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Mr. Courts was a former vice president of the Investment Bankers Assn. of America and a member of the board of governors of the Associated Stock Exchange Firms of America.

As a tennis enthusiast, he was instrumental in the development of the Betsy Grant tennis center here while chairman of the City zens Public Parks Advisory Committee. With Grant, he won the state doubles championship several times. He was Southern intercollegiate tennis champion in 1927 while at the University of Georgia. He was a 1929 graduate of the university.

His son, Richard W. Courts II, is a member of the University of Georgia tennis team.

Other survivors include his wife, the former Vaughn Nixon; a daughter, Mrs. Norman Coolidge; his brother, Mrs. Richard W. Courts Sr.; a brother, Richard W. Courts, and a sister, Mrs. Tucker Wayne, all of Atlanta.

Negro May Run For Mayor Here

NEW YORK, June 30 (AP)—A Negro minister said today he would run for mayor of Atlanta if the Negro vote in that Southern city continues to increase.

The Rev. William Holmes Borders, pastor of Wheat Street Baptist Church in Atlanta, said: "Nineteen thousand Negroes helped elect the present mayor of Atlanta, who also received the votes of 16,000 white persons. If the Negro vote continues to increase I will run for mayor myself."

The clergyman made the statement after he was honored along with 99 other persons in an annual "Achievement Day" exercise at the Abyssinian Church here.

Gov. Griffin's Term Has Months To Go

Now that the furor over at the Capitol about who in the administration will run for governor, State Highway Board Chairman Roger Lawson or Revenue Commissioner T. V. (Red) Williams, has been resolved in Mr. Lawson's favor, department heads and state employees can get back to the job of running the government and its necessary services.

Mr. Williams, for instance, again can concentrate on the task of collecting the necessary funds for operating said government, a job which he has done quite well. Indications are that collections in the fiscal year which ended yesterday will set another record.

Meanwhile, Georgia citizens will hope that Gov. Griffin meant it when he said he intends to call all of his department heads in soon and tell them to lay off politicking for anybody. His administration has a year and a half to go. The primary itself is more than a year away.

Nothing would be more demoralizing to efficient administration than for departments and employees of the state to become involved in active support of any candidate for governor. It would lead to waste of state funds as well as time of officials and employees.

Mr. Lawson, of course, will be a stronger candidate than Commissioner Williams would have been. He surely will not want to be tagged permanently as anybody's candidate. It would be a mistake for him to become known as the captive candidate of this administration and that is what will happen unless politicking is curbed.

As it stands now, Lt. Gov. Vandiver and Mr. Lawson appear to be front runners in next year's gubernatorial derby. Between them Georgians will have a choice of candidates who offer constructive programs.

But another legislative session is ahead and much work remains to be done in the present administration. It is too early to start a political campaign for a primary which will not come until September of 1958.

Unless Gov. Griffin holds a restraining hand on politics within his own official family, his administration will pay the consequences.

Bank Resources Growth Reflects South's Progress

The average Georgian, in fact, citizens of all the Southeastern states, have more money in their pockets and in their bank accounts than ever before.

The U.S. Department of Commerce has announced that the state's 412 operating banks had deposits of $2,434,226,000 at the end of 1946—amounting to $866.54 in business and personal deposits for each of its more than two million adults.

In the seven-state Southeastern area, the figure was $11,712,949,000—an estimated average of $862.32 for each adult.

The steady gains in bank deposits and resources reflect the economic growth of the region. They also indicate that Southeastern banks are better able to finance the region's development than at any time in the past.

But the region still must import a great deal of its capital. There still isn't enough to finance the industrial and business developments now going on, an economic fact of life which keeps the region more or less in hock to banking interests in other sections. But even so, the South's financial dependence is becoming less.

Bank deposits per capita are still less than half the national average of $1,808.42 and the rate of gain is somewhat smaller. But at least there is progress and indications of even greater progress in the future as business and industry continue their southward march.

Southern Folk Songs Were Written by Yankees

This will come as a shock, especially to those who don't like to be reminded of such unpleasant things, but most of our best-loved Southern folk songs were written by Yankees—some of whom never visited the land of cotton and magnolias. Authority for that statement is a chap by the name of Bennie Bengtson, who'll probably be roundly denounced for his pains.

Writing in the magazine Think, published by IBM, Bengtson points out that the author of "Dixie" was an Ohioan named Daniel Decatur Emmett, who wrote the song under pressure for a minstrel show in a New York City boardinghouse on a rainy Sunday in 1859. He quotes Emmett as saying it was written "because it had to be."

"Old Folks at Home," "My Old Kentucky Home," "Oh! Susanna," "Swanee River" were the work of Stephen Collins Foster, who was born near Pittsburgh and spent his life there, in Cincinnati and New York City.

"Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" was written by a Negro, James A. Bland, of Flushing, N.Y. "Listen to the Mocking Bird" was the work of Septimus Winner, a Philadelphian. Benjamin R. Hanby, of Ohio, gave us "Darling Nelly Gray."

Emmett, author of "Dixie," wrote others which are still popular favorites today. They include "Old Dan Tucker," "The Road to Richmond" and "Jordan's a Hard Road to Travel."

And to make it even worse, the Yankee team of Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein II brought forth the great contemporary hit, "Old Man River."

If Mr. Bengtson proves anything, it is that the South then and now possesses those indefinable qualities of beauty and romance which inspire song. And wandering minstrels who have even a slight introduction to them still go back to immortalize it in rhyme and music.

Georgia Press Wishes All the Best for Jenkins

Georgia journalism loses one of its most stalwart and beloved leaders today when Herschel V. Jenkins, at the age of 85, retires as publisher of the Savannah Morning News and the Savannah Evening Press.

Through long and pleasant association, the names of Mr. Jenkins and the Savannah newspapers have become practically synonymous. He has been constant in his devotion to duty throughout his successful career.

He is held in the highest esteem by the fellow members of his profession, both as a publisher and as a genial host at many press conclaves. May his retirement be as filled with happiness as his years of work have been with productivity.

An Opportunity for Port Looming at St. Marys

Facilities at St. Marys should comprise a welcome addition to Georgia's port family.

Rep. Iris Blitch has announced the Army presently does not need the multi-million-dollar Kings Bay ammunition loading terminal and will make it available for rental to commercial operators for something in excess of $25,000 annually.

The terminal has a 34-foot dredged channel, is located midway between the ports of Savannah and Jacksonville, is connected by spur tracks to main line railroads and is well equipped to handle large ships.

The state would do well to make an immediate investigation into the situation. It appears to be an opportunity that should not be disregarded.

Soil Bank Regulations Would Curtail Abuses

The administration at last is moving toward adoption of controls to enable the hastily implemented soil-bank program to accomplish some of its purposes.

Present proposals would forbid farmers who put a part of their land into the soil-bank's acreage reserve from increasing plantings of other soil-depleting crops on their remaining acreages.

Thus, a farmer who signed up to retire some of his cotton acreage would be prohibited from compensating for it by increasing the amount of wheat he grows.

This stringent action will be unpalatable to many farmers. However, if the soil bank is to achieve such objectives as soil improvement and prevention of new surpluses it must be armed with necessary controls.

The over-all program still falls short of meeting agriculture's needs. But if the nation is to live with it at least the abuses that have been permitted previously under the soil bank must be eliminated.

Charles M. Guthrie

In the Minneapolis Tribune

Because many parents abhor nicknames, they strive to give their sons names they always will be called. This undoubtedly contributes to the state of short masculine names today.

But the effort might better be expended on something less futile. The nickname will not be denied. A lad named Gary is as apt to attract one as a kid named Sylvester. It is to 1 that Gary will be called Statur, Rusty, Monk, Buster or Rags by his pals. He will not be Gary until adulthood.

I don't understand the aversion to nicknames, anyway. The nickname, even though it be Balloon Pants or Goony, is complimentary in a sense. It indicates social acceptance. The fellow who always is called by his given name, at least between 5 and 20, doesn't quite rate as one of the boys.

Mother of Three Relates How She Avoids Mad Whirl of 'Keeping Up With Joneses'

Atlanta—I read with interest Ralph McGill's column in The Constitution, "Man, That's Really Living."

I, too, would have been caught up in this mad rush except I have found a better way to live. I worked away from my home, leaving my home and my children, thinking I would be giving them a better way of life until I realized I was depriving them of a mother.

A year and a half ago I quit work to have our third child and I did not go back. (Incidentally, I was with the Police Dept. and the work was quite interesting.)

I've certainly learned a lot—like the joy of keeping your home shining and clean, not being a fanatic, but livable for my family. Believe me, a woman can keep her work done if she is physically able and stays home when she should.

I learned to be content with the way of life my husband can provide for us.

I also found time to talk with and teach my children the good things in life and teach them about their Creator, who has provided good and perfect things (not people in life), for their enjoyment. I enjoy my children and my home.

I don't have much company with my neighbors as I usually stay busy—and they seem to be quite frustrated most of the time, either over what they have or don't have or their children.

Rewarding the Good Drivers Is Worthy of Consideration

An overwhelming proportion of the efforts to make traffic safe is directed at warning, penalizing and lambasting the bad drivers. It is not our notion that too much emphasis is laid on the reckless, the drunks, the speeders and the like, but we think it may very well be that too little attention is paid to rewarding good driving.

In any event, out in California Gov. Goodwin J. Knight has signed into law a bill that recognizes the right of the law-abiding motorist to special consideration. Drivers who have not been in trouble with the law may get a driver's license good for five years. A driver who has been convicted of two moving violations or has been convicted of a felony in which a car was used can get only a two-year license.

It remains to be seen how much inducement to obey the laws of the state and of common sense and ordinance courtesy will be found in the right to get an extended driver's license. Regardless of that, however, it is interesting and commendable that California's legislators have decided to acknowledge the safe driver's existence, at least.

Another interesting thing about the new driver's license statute is der a legalized system, why not under the present system?

2. If legalizing liquor drives out the illegal, then is bootlegging in Fulton County extinct?

3. If legalizing an evil makes the citizens more respectful of law, shouldn't we do away with speeders and disrespect of law by raising the speed limit to 70 or 80 m.p.h., thereby preventing "open violations and disrespect for law" by "otherwise decent citizens"?

4. Likewise, shouldn't we legalize betting for many "otherwise decent citizens" who still like to bet?

Our hope in this state is not in legalization, but in prosecution of those who supply the materials, those who prepare and handle the bootleg and then build up a standard of living and of morals which makes bootlegging undesirable.

We've made strides toward improving the situation, let's not give up just before victory.

Court Stressed Bill of Rights

Neither the Congress of the United States nor the American people will be misled by the action of the U.S. Supreme Court in condoning communism as a party doctrine or a social-political theory.

What the U.S. Supreme Court ruled on, in the series of decisions handed down recently, were, broadly, specific violations or alleged violations of the Bill of Rights of the Constitution.

In the "California cases," five convicted California Communist leaders were freed. New trials under the Smith Act were ordered for nine others. The Smith Act holds it an offense to advocate and conspire to overthrow the government of the United States by force and violence.

All the "comrades" from Maine to Hawaii and the Red propaganda machines from Moscow to Peiping will hail this as a great victory for communism.

Isn't it an accentuation for the U.S. Bill of Rights, interpreted very broadly and sweepingly?

There's no occasion here for any concession to the principles or the puppets of communism and no reason for any congratulations to or sympathy for the known or suspected Reds and their local organizations.

The temper and spirit of Americans are markedly anti-Communist. So are the people of Hawaii.

It would be unrealistic, however, to minimize the labor troubles which this series of decisions is likely to make for Hawaii.

Leftwing labor unions will hail it as an immediate and immense triumph.

They will be more than ever insistent in their demands and arrogant in their threats of strikes that will close plantations and ports.

Indeed, the need is more imperative now than in case of shipping strikes that out Hawaii's "lifeline" with the U.S. mainland, Federal government action will be ready and prompt to step in with service and supplies.

The Congress may, probably will, produce some amendatory legislation, or congressional rules, in keeping with the comments of the Supreme Court.

Certainly the congressional committees which have been revealing, for years past, the continued plotting of the Reds in America won't be halted by the court decision. They'll amend their procedures but not their objectives, with which every true American agrees.

Sermons Will Be 'Double-Header'

This morning I shall be heading for the hills. The destination is Highlands, N.C. The lovely Highlands Country Club has a chair waiting for me at the dining table which I shall make good use of three times a day. Also, there is a big rocking chair out on the porch where I can sit and "lift up mine eyes unto the hills."

And when it is time for sleep, they have for me a good bed and a warm blanket which I shall need as those cool mountain breezes blow.

Along about dark each night, we'll all gather at the church for preaching and there will be plenty of it. In fact, we'll be having a "double-header" each night, and I shall enjoy that. I'll be one of the "headers" each night and I enjoy my own preaching, whether anybody else does or not.

The other "header" will be the one and only Dr. Pierce Harris. Next to myself, I think I'd rather hear him preach than anybody. At times I think I enjoy him even more than I do myself. He has marvelous insight both into the ways of God and into the ways of man. During these last weeks, Pierce has had almost a monopoly on the love and prayers of multitudes of people and we thank God for his faith which has so wonderfully stood up under severe testing.

At this season of the year Highlands is crowded with people but they are there on vacation and they may not be in a church-going mood. So I am taking a pretty good congregation with me. Mama and three children will be along, my brother Stanley and his family from Mississippi are driving up, and my sister Grace and her husband are coming down from New York. That makes up a fairly good "Amen Corner" and I suspect a few others will be coming in each night to hear Dr. Harris. So we ought to have enough people to have a meeting.

They have a lovely golf course up there, some horses to ride and a pretty little lake to swim in. So when we are not holding meetings, eating, sleeping or rocking on the porch, there will be other activities to enjoy.

Thinking about this week, all the ingredients are there to make it a fine experience. Dr. Cabot said there are four things by which men live: —work—love—play—worship. Get those four things in proper balance and you have a good life. We'll be working some; that is, if you call preaching work. With your family together there is love. And God meant for us to have some fun as we go along through life. Most important is worship. It will be inspiring to gather at the lovely little church just as the sun is setting behind the purple mountains. It will be a time of devout worship.

I wish I could carry all my friends along this week. But every week should include time for work, love, play and worship. Don't leave out any one of the four.

Governors Swept Ike Proposal Aside

WASHINGTON—It seemed a fantastic attitude, the cool, unenthusiastic, substantially indifferent and overly cynical response of most of the governors to President Eisenhower's proposal to do something practical about restoring the balance of state-versus-federal power.

For the first time there was a serious proposal to reverse the trend by which power and authority have been flowing from the state capitals to Washington for a half century.

And what was the principal, behind-the-scenes reaction at the governors' conference in Williamsburg, Va.?

True, the governors passed a resolution saying it was just a dandy idea. Not a derogatory word was spoken in the open.

But I doubt if any of the 119 news and radio correspondents there found other than I did—that some of the governors questioned the sincerity of the President's proposals, that others questioned their practicality, that the governors of most of the larger and more prosperous states have so much on their hands that they don't really feel much encroachment by the federal government and that numerous of the governors of the smaller, less prosperous states would rather talk volubly about recovering states rights than doing something hard about it, would prefer both to preserve the issue and keep the flow of federal money moving into their states.

The result of this state of mind was that Eisenhower got a restrained—bordering on a cool—reception.

I am not suggesting that it is as easy to carry out the President's proposals as it is to make them.

"It is idle," the President pointed out, "to champion states rights without upholding states' responsibilities as well."

This is why not a few of the governors who talk most reverently about states rights are cool to the President's concrete proposals. They are not desirous of taking on the states' responsibilities as the price of recovering the states' rights.

Brave Kelly Fought Sherman's Hordes

Down in Wilkinson County by the side of the road is related a story brave as any ever told. The spot is marked with graven metal, where stood the heroic J. Rufus Kelly. He resisted with fierce and determined pride the conquering Sherman's Georgia ride. A tale tingling from head to toes, here's the way the saga goes:

"He Wouldn't Run."

"J. Rufus Kelly, 18, was a member of the Co. B 14th Georgia Infantry, Confederate Army at Jerico Ford, Va., when the 14th had orders to fall back. Young Kelly kept advancing, waving his hat and rifle and urging his Confederates to come on. When the retreat continued, Kelly teamed up with another brigade, losing a leg in battle."

"Back home at Gordon on crutches, he voluntarily spied on Sherman's army advancing from Macon. Dashing into Gordon on horseback he warned Georgia's adjutant general that the Federals were coming, then roundly cursed the officer for entraining his 700 cadets and paroled convicts for flight from the 100,000 oncoming marchers."

"I will defend the women and children of Gordon alone," Kelly told Gen. Wayne on the porch of the old Solomon Hotel. Aided by one man, John R. Bragg, Kelly went out to meet the advancing Union Army and killed one soldier. The advance was delayed until the Union forces deployed around Gordon."

"They captured Kelly when his horse staggered and sentenced him to be shot."

Dalton Argument Ends With Calhoun Man Slain

An argument in Dalton Sunday afternoon ended in the fatal shooting of a 50-year-old Calhoun man, Whitfield County Sheriff Donald McArthur said.

Health Peril In Wake of Hurricane

Some of the clean-up operations. Some of the people waiting at the river dock Sunday identified bodies as being those of relatives. But other bodies went unidentified.

The only two roads to Cameron and nearby Creole were cleared away and opened for emergency travel today. Bodies were brought here by trucks from Cameron.

Don Stout of Atlanta, Southeastern medical director of the Red Cross, said that Red Cross medical teams and supply units were using the roads Sunday for the first time.

"We'll have medical teams down there as long as necessary," he said. "It may be for two weeks, maybe for a month."

41,000 SHELTERED

A mobile disaster canteen, fully equipped to serve meals, was dispatched from the Red Cross Southeastern regional office in Atlanta. Thirty of the 100 disaster workers are from the Atlanta office.

More than 41,000 persons were housed in 80 Red Cross shelters at the peak of the disaster, Red Cross officials said. However, at present the number being housed has been reduced to about 1,600.

While disaster teams continued to clean up debris in the coastal sections, scores of boats were roaming the Gulf shores, lakes and other waterways in search of bodies. It will be a week or longer before all of the dead are found. Some may never be found. The tidal wave that swept over the little fishing village of Cameron sucked some of its victims back into the murky waters of the Gulf.

FIVE BODIES SIGHTED

On a quick plane trip from Lake Charles to Cameron, located 30 miles to the south, a Constitution reporter spotted five bodies that had not been recovered.

The pilot, rice farmer W. C. Watkins, Lake Charles, member of the Civil Air Patrol, said "You know there might well be hundreds of more bodies, we're taking a direct route and have seen five. And these have been in the open. What about those under debris that can't be seen from the air?"

Search planes, helicopters and boats are combing a 50-mile stretch of the Louisiana coast in search for victims.

FEW SURVIVORS

A few survivors also are being picked up, but most of them already have been evacuated.

Also on the flight was Clayton Muncy, who was being flown to Cameron to operate a bulldozer in clean-up operations. Muncy peered from the window of the small four-seat plane and pointed to a small stack of lumber: "That was my home," he said.

Muncy, his wife and two children survived along with several hundred other Cameron residents who sought shelter in the Cameron courthouse.

Special Sheriff's Deputy David G. Conner said of the storm victims: "They gambled with the storm and lost. They should have gotten out earlier. I've heard them say a million times in the past when storms threatened, 'it won't get too bad here.' It were wrong this time."

Law enforcement officials cordoned off Cameron with roadblocks to keep out nonessential traffic. Soon dump trucks were rolling north, laden with bodies of the newly discovered dead.

Bass To Begin Registration for Summer Session

Bass Music and Recreation School will start registration for its 18th annual session Monday. The school will start its three-week program July 8.

Registration will be held every day this week except July 4. The school is open to anyone over 10 years of age.

Classes include band, glee club, photography, woodshop, printing, handicraft, cooking, sewing, dancing, typing, dramatics, crafts and sports.

The only expense involved in the program is a $2 fee for the purchase of materials used in the various classes. Each class is under the direction of a specialist selected from city high school staffs and the city department of recreation.

The school day begins at 9 a.m. and ends at 12:40 p.m. each day, Monday through Friday.

The program was started in 1940 and has been under the direction of W. J. Scott, principal of Bass High School, since its inception.

The victim was identified as E. C. Smith of Rte. 1, Calhoun.

Clyde Brackett, 62, of Dalton was jailed on a charge of murder in the shooting. Brackett was treated at Whitfield County hospital for a knife slash on the left side of his throat, Sheriff McArthur said.

The shooting occurred at Brackett's home in Dalton, according to the sheriff. Smith was shot once with a .22 caliber rifle, medical reports show.

The sheriff said one of Brackett's neighbors, Mrs. Iva Dean Copeland, reported she saw Brackett shoot Smith during an argument after Smith drew a knife.

Body Is Recovered

The body of Julian Swanson, 30, of Rte. 1, Silver Creek, was recovered from Hodges Lake in Bartow County at 5 p.m. Sunday. Mr. Swanson reportedly fell or jumped from a boat on the lake at 11:15 a.m. . . . Alligator Blamed in Death of Boy

EAU GALLIE, Fla., June 30 (AP)—Searchers found the badly mangled body of a 9-year-old boy beside a creek here today and said he apparently had been attacked by an alligator.

"I don't think there could have been any other cause of death," said Deputy Sheriff Jim Drawdy. Allen Rice had been missing from home since Friday afternoon. Horse Creek, where his body was found, was one of his favorite playing places. His bicycle had been found earlier at an entrance to a path leading to the canal.

Authorities speculated the youngster had been playing on the bank of the creek Friday night when the alligator attacked him. The reptiles are known to haunt most of the streams in the area, but rarely have been known to attack humans unless molested.

Over 1,000 volunteers had searched for the boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Beatty, yesterday and the search party started again at daybreak today.

The boy's body was found about a quarter of a mile up the creek from the path.

HOW TO KEEP WELL: Low Fat Diet Fights Arthritis

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

Osteoarthritis favors older persons. The joint changes show up under X-rays but the findings are unrelated to the amount of discomfort. In other words, some persons have extensive X-ray changes but have no pain, and vice versa.

The disorder is not necessarily due to wear and tear, as was formerly believed. Many authorities are convinced it is part of the over-all picture of aging with a disturbance of the metabolic processes of the body, similar to that which produces hardening of the arteries.

If this is so, treatment in the future will be aimed at reducing the amount of cholesterol and other fatty molecules in the blood. For practical purposes, this means a low fat diet. Obesity, fatigue, injury, and stress affect osteoarthritis in much the same way as they influence arteriosclerosis.

Numerous researchers have shown that arthritis is not caused by hard work. Thirty years ago a German made a thorough study of the joints of 200 individuals. Of these, 100 had worked at manual labor for many years; the remainder led a sedentary existence. There was no difference in the appearance of their joints.

This type of arthritis occurs in both sexes, and the natives of Arizona and California are bothered just as much as those from New York and Wisconsin. This means that climate is not a factor except that dampness aggravates pain.

The majority of victims get along well with their aching, creaking joints. Improvement follows heat and massage. Aspirin takes the edge off the rougher times but the more potent steroids may be needed when pain and disability are severe. The diet should be well balanced. To be on the safe side, go light on fats. Your joints and blood vessels will appreciate the help and so will your figure.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions relating to health and hygiene in his column, and by a mail when self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed. Letters should be addressed to Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen, Care of The Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta 2, Ga.

Poser in Nude Stand-in for Princess Margaret

LONDON, June 30 (UP)—A showgirl who poses in the nude was unveiled today as a stand-in for Princess Margaret in a new royal portrait.

Italian artist Pietro Annigoni explained that the curvaceous model, Georgina Moore, 19, got the job because like all nudes on the British stage "she is trained to keep still."

Annigoni is a rising artist already famed for his canvases of Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh.

Margaret is his current subject. Queen Mother Elizabeth commissioned the painting to have in Clarence House, the mansion she shares with Margaret.

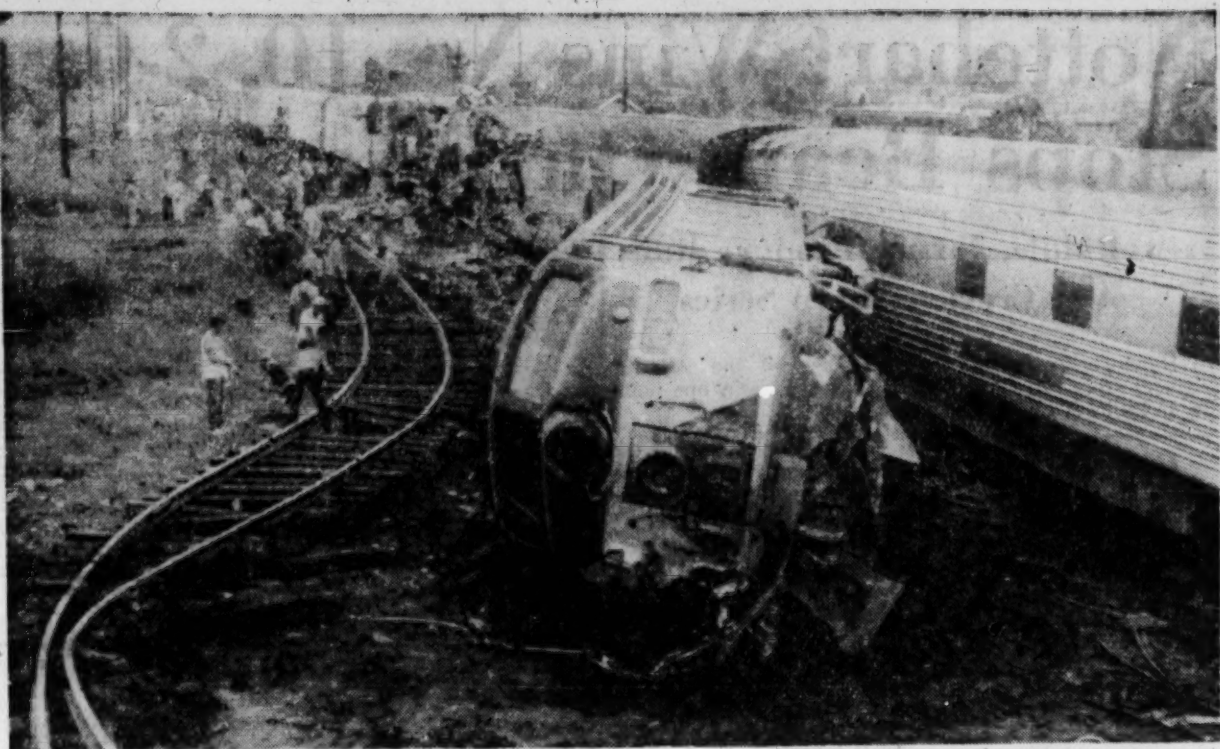

"Georgina poses for me in draperies and stands patiently in positions that I cannot possibly ask of Princess Margaret," the London Sunday Pictorial quoted Annigoni as saying.

This skill of being still is vital in British entertainment because nudes are permitted on stage only if they are motionless. That makes them art studies in the eyes of the law.

According to the Sunday Pictorial, Georgina did not know whom she was modelling.

"I have been to Annigoni's studio three times in the past week but I did not see a portrait of Princess Margaret," she was quoted as saying. "It is a complete mystery to me."

"My measurements are nothing like Princess Margaret's," she said.

U.S. Raises Jordan Aid $10 Million

By DANA ADAMS SCHMIDT

(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, June 30—State Department officials disclosed today that the United States had granted Jordan a further $10,000,000 in economic aid in addition to the $10,000,000 grant for military equipment announced yesterday.

The two grants in effect fill the gap left by the default of neutralist Syria and Egypt, which last January joined Saudi Arabia in pledging the equivalent of $36,000,000 to replace the former British subsidy to Jordan. Only Saudi Arabia has paid thus far, giving half of her promised $14,000,000 share. No moves have been made by Egypt and Syria to carry out their pledges to provide $14,000,000 and $8,000,000 respectively.

SECOND SINCE APRIL

The economic grant disclosed today is the second since April, when the United States at the height of King Hussein's struggle for independence from Egyptian interference, gave him $10,000,000 for emergency support.

Total U.S. grants to Jordan since April are therefore $30,000,000. This establishes the United States as heir to Britain's burden in Jordan, at least financially.

Informed guesses are that the bill for keeping Jordan independent will run slightly less, perhaps around $25,000,000 in future years. The United States is counting on the continuance of Saudi Arabian help and is urging Iraq and Britain to provide assistance.

$4,500,000 CREDIT

Iraq has already agreed to let Jordan make such use as she deems fit of a $4,500,000 credit originally earmarked for potash industry development. Larger amounts of Iraqi aid are under consideration.

Britain, meanwhile, is considering loans to complete a road to Aqaba and Aqaba port construction that were begun with British financing.

Multilateral participation, U.S. officials hope, will put American aid to the impecunious desert kingdom on a footing different from that of the British subsidy. For more than 30 years the British jealously guarded their controlling role in the kingdom they formed after World War I to serve as a basis for British military and political power in the Middle East.

The United States, however, has no such object in Jordan. There is no prospect of an American equivalent of "Glubb Pasha,"—Lieut. Gen. John Bagot Glubb—who ran Jordan's Arab legion for about a generation.

The United States was drawn into subsidizing Jordan during the April crisis against its will and in spite of numerous earlier statements by U.S. officials that they had no intentions of picking up where the British had left off, even financially.

States, Territories Get 99 Pct. of Salk Funds

WASHINGTON, June 30 (UP)—The Public Health Service announced today that more than 99 per cent of the $53,600,000 appropriated by Congress for polio vaccine has been paid to states and territories.

The department said that when all vaccine purchased as of yesterday, the last day of the fiscal year, has been used, about 29 million children and pregnant women will have received a total of over 75 million injections through the government-financed program.

The program, enacted Aug. 12, 1955, served to supplement state and local efforts to finance vaccinations.

ALABAMA ATTACK

Youth Says 2 Men Hung Him in Tree

MOBILE, Ala., June 30 (AP)—A 16-year-old white boy who told officers he was dragged from his home last night, beaten by two Negroes and left hanging by his arms in a tree, was undergoing hospital treatment tonight.

Chief deputy sheriff Jimmie Chambers said Laverne Wilcox was found hanging by his roped wrist from a tree about 18 miles west of Mobile. He said the youth claimed he had been hanging about two hours after he allegedly was beaten up by two unidentified Negroes.

KEY TO CASE

Chambers said "ownership of the rope used to tie the boy's wrists may be the key in solving the case."

Wilcox was quoted as saying his assailants came into his home while his parents were at a movie, slugged him and carried him to the tree where picnickers found him.

E. A. Moorman, who cut the boy down, took him to the hospital. The youth recently underwent surgery for removal of his appendix. His condition today was said to be "fair."

"UPSET STATE"

Chambers said the rope resembled one generally used as a lasso by cowboys. The boy denied he owned the rope. The officer said Wilcox was in "an upset state" and further questioning will be made tomorrow.

Officers and Moorman said the youth told them that no weapons were used by the Negroes, and Chambers said there are no rope marks on his wrists and "apparently no bruises on his body."

Nickerson To Carry On Fight for Army Missiles

By WILLIAM TUCKER

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., June 30 (UP)—Through books and magazines—and through official security channels—Col. John C. Nickerson plans to carry on his fight for Army missiles even from the other side of the world, he said today.

Also, he said "I will speak my opinions whenever I can. But there is no freedom of speech in the military service like there is in civilian life, and there should not be."

Nickerson drew a year's suspension of rank, $1,500 in forfeited pay and a reprimand yesterday at the climax of his five-day court-martial for leaking missile secrets. It was considered only the punishment "for the record," because he could have received 30 years at hard labor and dismissal from the service.

"I haven't fully worked it out yet what I am going to do to stay in this thing," he said.

"There will be some articles and books written and they will be submitted for security clearance." He said he fully expected to be transferred overseas.

Washington sources said his new assignment is expected to be made this week.

Although he may speak his mind from time to time, Nickerson is out of action indefinitely for operational work with the Army missiles. For one thing, where he is going he does not expect to find anything more advanced than a howitzer.

But the main reason is Nickerson has lost his top-secret security clearance.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery

Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain—without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations. Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have caused me a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Frick Names Starting Lineups for All-Star Game

NEW YORK, June 30 (AP)—Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick announced today the starting lineups, other than the pitchers, of the American and National League All-Star teams for the July 9 game at St. Louis. As expected, the National League team is composed of five Cincinnati players and Stan Musial of St. Louis, Willie Mays of New York and Hank Aaron of Milwaukee.

Musial, Mays and Aaron are the three players Frick named on Friday, disregarding a deluge of late Cincinnati ballots in the fan poll. Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox and Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees head the American Leaguers.

The starters:

AMERICAN LEAGUE
1B—Vic Wertz, Cleveland.
2B—Nelson Fox, Chicago.
3B—George Kell, Baltimore.
SS—Harvey Kuenn, Detroit.
LF—Ted Williams, Boston.
CF—Mickey Mantle, New York.
RF—Al Kalline, Detroit.
C—Yogi Berra, New York.
P—To be named later by Manager Casey Stengel of New York.

NATIONAL LEAGUE
1B—Stan Musial, St. Louis.
2B—Johnny Temple, Cincinnati.
3B—Don Hoak, Cincinnati.
SS—Roy McMillan, Cincinnati.
LF—Frank Robinson, Cincinnati.
CF—Willie Mays, New York.
RF—Hank Aaron, Milwaukee.
C—Ed Bailey, Cincinnati.
P—To be named later by Manager Walt Alost of Brooklyn.

In announcing the final result of the fan balloting, Frick's office included the barrage of last week's 550,000 votes from Cincinnati. Had the commissioner not acted Gus Bell and Wally Post of the Redlegs would have started in center and right field, respectively. However, the final tabulation showed Musial did not need Frick's help. He finished with 363,792 votes to 272,655 for George Crowe, the other Cincinnati player Frick barred as a starter along with Bell and Post.

Frick took his action because "an overbalance of Cincinnati ballots has resulted in the selection of a team which would not meet with the approval of the fans the country over."

Williams got the most votes in the American League, 255,969 to 253,101 for Mantle. Nelson Fox of the White Sox was close behind with 247,330.

Wally Post of the Redlegs would have started in center and right field, respectively. However, the final tabulation showed Musial did not need Frick's help. He finished with 363,792 votes to 272,655 for George Crowe, the other Cincinnati player Frick barred as a starter along with Bell and Post.

Lawrence's Pitching Helps Reds to a Pair

Throws Six-Hit, 6-1 Opener; Halts Phil Rally in Second

CINCINNATI, June 30 (AP)—The Cincinnati Redlegs used superior power and six-hit pitching in each game today, sweeping the double-header from Philadelphia's Phillies, 6-1 and 6-2, with right-hander Brooks Lawrence getting in on both games.

Lawrence took his ninth win going the route in the opener, then came on with a bases-loaded situation in the ninth inning of the nightcap to snuff out a big Phil threat.

Home runs by Pete Whisenand and Don Hoak accounted for three of the Redleg markers in the nightcap.

In the second inning of the opener, Lawrence batted in two runs, his first this year.

George Crowe's two-run homer for the Reds in the fifth inning, after Gus Bell had singled, capped the Redleg scoring.

Simmons, first of four Phillie hurriers, took the loss, lasting only to the fourth inning.

Musial Sixth Among All-Time Homer Hitters

ST. LOUIS, June 30 (AP)—Stan Musial took over the sixth spot on the all-time list in total home runs today when he sent a drive onto the right field pavilion roof in the first inning of the second game between St. Louis and New York.

The homer, with two on base, was Musial's 8th for the Cardinals this season and the 370th of his career. Stan had been tied with Ralph Kiner for sixth place with 369.

Babe Ruth (714), Jimmy Foxx (534), Melvin Ott (511), Lou Gehrig (494) and Ted Williams (438) are all ahead of Musial.

Cubs, Brooks Divide As Fan Marks Fall

CHICAGO, June 30 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs, victimized by Brooklyn six straight times, checked the defending champions with a 2-2 victory in 11 innings, but the Dodgers came back to win the second game of a double-header, 5-1, behind rookie southpaw Danny McDevitt.

Two major league strikeout records were set as 27 Dodgers whiffed in the twinnings.

Musial, Ennis Poke Homers To Cool Sizzling Giants, 7-1

Lindy McDaniel Wins Nightcap

ST. LOUIS, June 30 (AP)—Baby Lindy McDaniel with home runs by Stan Musial, Del Ennis and Hobbie Landrih checked the torrid New York Giants today, 7-1, in the second game of a double-header. The Giants' Ruben Gomez achieved his 10th victory, tops in the National League, with a thrifty six-hitter, 5-3, in the first over the right field pavilion roof.

After Joe Cunningham walked, manager Bill Rigney called for McDaniel, hitless in four first at-bats, to take the mound in the fifth inning when New York runs with his first-inning home run, and Del Ennis pounded a two-run homer in the third off of reliever Al Worthington, second of four Giant pitchers.

The nightcap victory meant the Red Birds salvaged the last contest in a four-game series from the hot-running Giants who dropped only their fifth game in their last 20.

Starter Ray Crone didn't get a Cardinal out in the nightcap, Don Blasingame walked, Al Dark singled and Musial stroked the ball over the right field pavilion roof.

After Joe Cunningham walked, manager Bill Rigney called for McDaniel, hitless in four first at-bats, to take the mound in the fifth inning when New York scored its run on a double by Wes Westrum and Gail Harris' pinch hit single.

Ed Kasko's triple and Don Blasingame's hunt single made for one run in the seventh off of Mike McCormick.

Landrih homered for the first time this season in the eighth inning. Gomez, a loser only four times, was involved in a see-saw game with Vinegar Bend Mizell, who suffered his sixth setback against a single victory.

Mays pounded across two runs in the first contest in which the Giants tallied two runs in the fifth inning to go ahead 4-3. A single by Danny Thomson's infield grounder made up the winning rally. A run on pinch hitter Don Mueller's single in the eighth iced it for the Giants.

Orioles Rout Indians, 12-3

Loes Hurls Four-Hit Job For Seventh Straight Win

BALTIMORE, June 30 (AP)—The Baltimore Orioles routed the Cleveland Indians 12-3 today behind the four-hit pitching of Billy Loes. It was the seventh straight win for Loes and his ninth victory over-all.

The triumph moved the Orioles, winners of seven of their last eight, within a half-game of the fifth-place Detroit Tigers.

Loes, the rejuvenated Brooklyn Dodger who has lost only three games, made only one slip. Gene Woodling slammed for his fourth homer in the fourth inning with two on.

Otherwise, the 28-year-old right-hander let only one Indian reach third in the ninth inning. He struck out nine batters and got the side out in order in six innings.

It was the third Oriole victory in the four-game series, only time since Baltimore entered the American League in 1954 that it had been able to edge the Indians in a set. It was only the 15th Oriole victory against 61 for Cleveland.

The heads-up Orioles easily mixed up six sacrifices with timely hitting and four Cleveland errors.

As a crowning blow, Gus Triandos blasted his sixth homer of the season in the Oriole eighth.

The Orioles had worked up a 4-0 lead off starter and loser Bob Lemon by the time Woodling got his homer behind the only Loes walk and an error.

Bosox Fence-Busters Wallop Tigers, 10-3

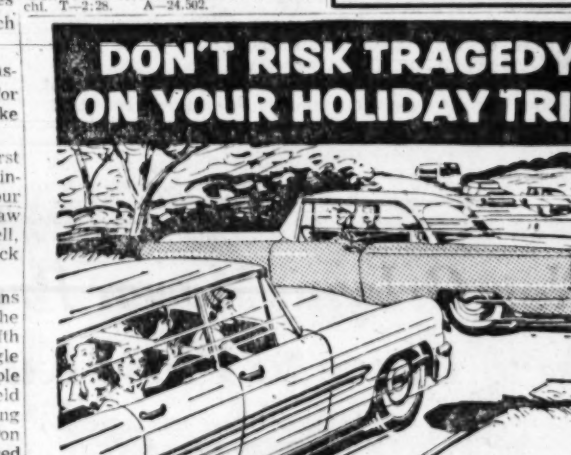

BOSTON, June 30 (AP)—The fence-busting Boston Red Sox bombed Detroit 10-3 today as Jackie Jensen's grand slam homer and Ted Williams' belt, his 20th, provided the crippling blows.

Just before play was interrupted because of rain, Jensen tagged his wind-driven fly that carried to the center field bleachers in the third inning after Detroit had taken a 2-0 lead.

WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:
 ♠A9♥10854♦AQ10♣AK10
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 heart Pass 3 hearts Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—This is a very powerful hand opposite a partner who has jumped the bidding. In normal circumstances it is our practice to show aces in this case but it will be seen that there is not sufficient space to permit the showing of all three aces. Our suggested call, therefore, is five hearts. Partner will deduce from this that you have all the outside aces, for if you had only two aces, you would show each of them. He will realize, therefore, that your great concern is with the hearts.

Q. 2—As South, after your right hand opponent opens with one spade, you hold:

♠K6♥A952♦AQ7♣AJ108

What action do you take?

A.—Double. The alternate call of one no trump is not our first choice in this case. Our objection is based to some extent on the fact that we have but one spade stopper, and to another because of the holding of four hearts. A heart contract might easily be lost by failure to double.

Q. 3—As South you hold:

♠A1084♥72♦9643♣AKQ

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
 1 diamond Pass 1 spade 2 hearts Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—A mere simple raise at this point would not do justice to your holding. You have 14 points in support of partner's bid and should insist upon a game contract, either by giving a double raise in diamonds or by a temporary bid of three clubs. The latter is our preference, for it may permit partner to contract for three no trump if he holds a heart stopper.

Q. 4—As South you hold:

♠KQ553♥A85♦63♣A94

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East
 1 spade Pass 3 diamonds Pass 3 spades Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Your hand, possessing as it does two first round controls, contains, in addition to a good trump suit, the essential ingredients of a slam. Take your choice as to the form of that action. In fact, with a conservative partner we might bid a slam directly.

Q. 5—As South you hold:

♠AK72♥1073♦A84♣Q65

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
 2 hearts Pass 1 spade Pass 2 hearts Pass

What do you bid now?
 A.—Pass. Inasmuch as partner has previously passed, you must be convinced that you are not going places. This is definitely a part score hand, and there is nothing wrong with hearts as trump.

Q. 6—As South you hold:

♠10753♥KQ♦K73♣A1054

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East
 Pass Pass 1 spade Pass 3 spades Pass 4 clubs Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Partner appears to be fishing around for a slam with full knowledge that you were unable to open the bidding. This is just about as fine a hand as any one could expect from a passing partner, and you should be pleased to cooperate by bidding five clubs.

Q. 7—Partner opens with one heart, and you hold:

♠A4♥KQJ3♦J102♣AJS3

What is your response?

A.—A direct raise to three hearts is our outstanding choice. While you may choose to temporize with a bid of two clubs, we cannot see that anything is to be gained by such action.

Q. 8—As South you hold:

♠A5♥A109842♦Q4♣AK6

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East
 1 heart Pass 1 spade Pass 1 heart Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Inasmuch as your hand has a trick taking power of seven tricks, a jump is indicated, and the obvious jump to three hearts is the approved procedure.

U.S. Employees Due Raises Here

Pay raises averaging from 10 to 14 cents an hour are scheduled to go into effect July 7 for almost 4,000 civilian employees of the armed forces in the Atlanta area.

Employees at Atlanta General Depot, Ft. McPherson and Dobbins Air Force Base who come under a wage board status will get the raises based on a survey of private business conducted by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Those workers with civil service "GS" ratings will not be affected.

NBC Show May Star M. Martin

(Copyright 1957, New York Times Co.)

NEW YORK, June 30—A special one-hour show starring Mary Martin and dedicated to the American woman is being considered for next season by NBC Television.

The project is still in a developmental stage and Miss Martin has not yet been approached to appear in it. However, talks are being held between Henry Salmon, in charge of the network's special projects, and Mills & Milford Park, a company of independent producers scheduled to start business officially on Aug. 1.

A network official said the show might use filmed and live material in a lighthearted portrayal of the American female busy at her varied activities.

The program is one of two "one-shot" ideas broached by the producing unit to NBC.

The members of the new company include two present NBC executives whose resignations from the network will become effective on July 31.

They are Ted Mills, an executive producer, and Ben Park, director of public services. The third, Gene Milford, is president of MKR Films.

Poston Picked Career Right Out of Magazine

NEW YORK, June 30—Comedian Tom Poston—the forgetful "man on the street"—and regular second banana on NBC-TV's "The Steve Allen Show"—picked his career from a magazine while he was resting in France in 1944 during World War II.

He read an article about the American Academy of Dramatic Arts, and decided then and there he wanted to attend the school and become an actor. And that's what he did when he was discharged from the Air Force.

Tom wasn't exactly new to showbusiness, however. He was born on a boat off the coast of North Carolina and was raised in Ohio. His family traveled a great deal—he lived in 25 towns in Ohio before he was five years old.

He turned to showbusiness, joining a tumbling team, The Flying Zebeys. Tom was top man in the act and, as his muscles developed, he moved nearer the bottom. While with The Flying Zebeys, Tom decided he wanted an education. So, he enrolled at several colleges and finally at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. To his own amazement and that of his former tumbling colleagues, he won a certificate as a dairy chemist.

During World War II he served in the Air Force. After his discharge he attended the American Academy of Dramatic Arts, and then organized a stock company in Delaware. It was a failure, however, and he went to New York to seek his fortune.

His tumbling experience stood him in good stead when he auditioned for his first job—the role of an officer in "Cyrano De Bergerac." It called for him to be run through by Jose Ferrer during a duel and then tumble off a high wall. He not only tumbled off the wall, but he rolled on to the edge of the stage and fell off for good measure. He got the part.

Since then he has been in many television dramatic shows and is a familiar figure on the Broadway stage. He had his own television show for a time in New York, too. Poston joined "The Steve Allen Show" in December, 1956. He is married to TV actress Jean Sullivan, and they have a one-year-old daughter Francesca.

The facts behind filter-tip cigarettes

Do filter-tip cigarettes really give you protection against lung cancer? Is any one filter more effective than another? Why are harsher, lower-grade tobaccos (which often contain more tars and nicotine) being used more and more widely in filter-tips?

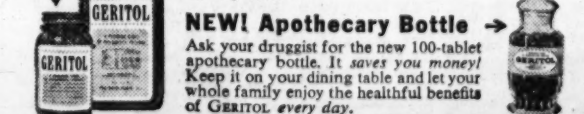

July Reader's Digest answers these and other questions of vital importance. The dramatic findings are based on a thorough scientific survey and new laboratory tests conducted especially for The Reader's Digest.

Boys Shoot Cars in Way Of Escape

they piled in and took off," he said.

Brooks said they stole a panel truck near Waco after the pickup truck ran out of gas. He said the panel truck contained a .12-gauge "and possibly another" shotgun.

The youngsters split up, with Davis and Hodges continuing on to Hillsboro in the panel truck.

A police car spotted the youths here and gave chase. Sheriff Brooks, notified by radio, and two highway patrol units also went after the speeding panel truck.

Brooks said the windshield of his patrol car was "pocked extensively" but wasn't broken. "Fortunately," he said, "the shotgun was loaded only with bird-shot."

The chase headed in the direction of Corsicana, where Capt. Billy Onstott set out on the highway to establish a roadblock. Onstott said he drove over a hill just as the panel truck went out of control, rolled over down an embankment, and crashed in a water-filled culvert.

About a score of officers arriving quickly on the scene crawled "Indian style" toward the wreckage since it wasn't known how many youths were in the panel truck or how heavily they were armed.

Davis, bleeding about the mouth and nose, but apparently not seriously injured, was captured and handcuffed. There was no trace of Hodges.

A statewide alert was issued for the six youths still at large.

Davis, interviewed by officers and newsmen, was asked why he shot at motorists along the highway.

In a mumbling voice, he said: "I thought it might slow down the sheriff." Then he added, "The wouldn't get out of the way."

Evictions Spur Riots in Poland

WARSAW, June 30 (UP)—Riots broke out in the town of Siedlice, 45 miles east of Warsaw, yesterday when militiamen forcibly removed eight families from apartments they occupied illegally, the newspaper "Trybuna Ludu" reported today.

The newspaper gave no details and listed no casualties. Siedlice has a population of about 40,000.

Thought Dead For 2 Months, Rector Found

light up, I think you couldn't doubt that memory flooded back at that instant," Byfield said.

"Then he burst into tears."

The church canon took the rector to his home, and at first telephoned to the Rev. Charles May, an Episcopal rector at Kennebec, Wash., who knows Daughters. An exchange of first names and other family data convinced May that the identification was certain enough to put the call through to Mrs. Carline Daughters, the rector's wife in Pasco.

Daughters, father of four sons, was presumed dead after a storm on the lake at Coeur d'Alene, when his small battered and empty boat was found washed ashore.

The minister said today he was unable to give any account of the two months he has "lost out of his life." But he said he could recall the circumstances of the day he disappeared. It's "come back in bits and pieces."

"No, the boat didn't overturn," he related. "I got into it to take it across an arm of the lake to a place where I could get some needed repairs on it. I remember docking, too. Yes, there was a storm. I can remember climbing out on the boat dock, but not a single thing after that."

Lawson Says Vandiver Is 'Soft' on Integration

night had the following to say about Lawson's charge on the television program:

"The statement of Mr. Lawson is so obviously ridiculous that it does not deserve the dignity of a reply."

The first five minutes of the televised interview were political, then the questions turned to the highway department's plans for new construction, particularly in and around Atlanta.

Lawson said 18.3 miles of the north-south leg of the Expressway were at present under contract and would cost in excess of $19,000,000.

He said the University avenue-Richardson street section of the Expressway would be officially opened by July 15. The Spring street-Baker street section will be completed within a 12-month period, the chairman said.

The downtown section—Baker street to Richardson street—has not been let to contractors yet, Lawson said.

"This has been our big headache," the highway chief said. "The highway department has had to reconcile the interchange and connectors, but I believe the plans now on our drawing boards are entirely satisfactory to all concerned."

Engineer Shadburn showed the television audience a map of the downtown section and explained that part of the slowness of the development of that part east of the state Capitol section was due to the tremendous amounts of dirt necessary to build up the roadway.

Shadburn said the Piedmont avenue bridge would probably be the first one built in this connecting section. He said all the bridges would probably be completed in a year, and that the connector could be finished by the end of 1960.

In discussing the interstate highway system, Lawson said 1,200 miles would be constructed in Georgia, giving the state fifth place in the nation in number of miles.

Lawson said the development of aerial surveys and electronic computers would materially speed up the engineering part of the highway construction.

Shadburn said that more than 400 miles of Georgia super-highways had already been planned, and that the state was well ahead of the national average on the work done on the highways. However, Shadburn said the work could not be done in the nationally estimated 15 years.

"More money would speed up the work, but with the funds now available, completion date is still a long way off," the engineer said.

Shadburn said the most needed sections of the roads—those around cities and towns—would be the ones started and completed first.

Chairman Lawson said the state would raise any money necessary to match federal funds in the road building project.

She Hates To Write 'Dear John'

By DOROTHY RICKER

Dear Mrs. Ricker: I am a girl of 16 and I am going steady with a wonderful boy. About a week ago I received a love letter from a former boy friend who I thought had forgotten me. He enlisted in the Army and I hadn't heard a word from him for about six months. In the letter he asked me to marry him.

I don't love him and I don't know how to tell him about my steady. It was a surprise to receive the letter, because I didn't know how he felt about me. He has never had a real family and when we met, he sort of adopted my family.

If I write him a "Dear John" letter he will be hurt and, since he is so emotional, he might even do something to harm himself bodily.

About all you can do is write the boy in the Army and tell him the score as gently as possible. If I were you I would start the letter by saying what a surprise it was to hear from him—after six months. Try to keep the letter friendly but impersonal.

Say something to the effect that he must have been carried away by a romantic mood when he wrote and could not have been serious because, as he knows, you are only 16 and too young to seriously consider marriage.

Add bits of interesting news about people he knows and mention off-hand some of your own activities and the fact that "at present I am going steady." End your letter by wishing him luck and you might add, "When you come home be sure to come by to see us. My family and I will always be glad to see you."

Actually, if you do as I suggest, the letter will still be more or less of a "Dear John" letter. However, the boy must be very peculiar, to say the least, to expect anything else—after a silence of six months—especially from a girl of your age.

Celestine Sibley
A Magazine For Georgia

It was here a week before I saw it—and I wanted to be one of the first to welcome that new and enormously readable publication, Georgia Magazine.

In a way I have watched the Georgia Magazine from the time it was a gleam in the beautiful blue eyes of Ann E. Lewis and, far from bolstering and encouraging her, I'm afraid I was a Cassandra howling dimly that she'd never get it out.

A local magazine would be lovely, I agreed, but oh, my goodness, the time and money and work it would take! Why, I said from my vast ignorance on the subject, it would take a fortune and a mighty staff.

Mrs. Lewis smiled and said maybe so and went serenely about selling ads, assigning stories, acquiring pictures—and the first issue of the Georgia Magazine (In Which Georgians Tell the Georgia Story) is now off the press. It is handsome to look at and it is chock full of stories, articles, poems and pictures to enlighten Georgians and to lift their hearts with pride.

Ann Lewis is an interesting woman—and a beautiful one. Married to William W. Lewis, a securities analyst and advertising director of Courts & Co., she moved to Decatur in 1952 from Whitmore, S.C., where she edited and published the Whitmore News, a country weekly. She has always written since her school days at Presbyterian College, Agnes Scott and Columbia College.

Once when their five children were little, Mrs. Lewis decided to take them to the World's Fair in New York and to California. She financed the trip by selling stories of their adventures to several newspapers and magazines, including what was then The Atlanta Journal Sunday magazine.

So when she came to Atlanta she missed writing. She joined the Atlanta Writers Club for that reason and there her husband, Bill, who also has a writing background (he wrote a column called "Billets," epigrams, light verse and humor for the Greenville News and several weeklies) walked away with a great many poetry and short story prizes.

Somehow the idea of a slick magazine, concentrating heavily on interesting places and interesting people in Georgia, took hold of Mrs. Lewis. Her husband joined her in the project as a member of the editorial board and she recruited Cecil Cobb Wesley, Mr. and Mrs. Bert H. Flanders, and Dr. John R. Lewis Jr., all seasoned writers, to serve with her.

Jeanne Osborne Gibbs, a former member of The Constitution staff, has taken over the department devoted to Georgia authors.

There's a calendar of events in Georgia, a quiz on Georgia places and history, a page of wedding pictures, a piece by Lockheed's Carl Kitchin called "A Newcomer Looks at His Adopted State," a short story by Mrs. Wesley, a feature and pictures from Dunaway gardens, a salute to four "young poets," and many other features, poems and pictures.

Mrs. Lewis plans to publish the Georgia Magazine bi-monthly and she invites criticism and suggestions.

"Does the soup need more salt or pepper—is it too thin or does it need a little water added? . . . Is the meat rare or well done? . . . Does the salad dressing need a little garlic? . . . Please write and tell us what you like and what you don't like."

I have a feeling she is going to hear a rising chorus of praise and enthusiasm—to which I would like to add my voice. She did it, she really launched her magazine, brave, smart Ann E. Lewis!

Pastor's Wife Keeps Busy Pursuing 2 Main Goals

By MARGARET McEMORE
Mrs. Joseph Edward Faulkner has two main goals . . . "to help my husband find the way to be the most useful to society," and for their children to be Christians.

A few minutes with the attractive young wife of the assistant pastor of the 10th Street Methodist Church convinces one she will realize her goals.

Holder of a master's degree in religious education, she is certainly equipped, spiritually and educationally, to be a helpmate to her husband, who is in the throes of deciding whether to remain a preacher or to teach in a Methodist school. Her life has always been entwined with the church, and she considers it no accident that she is married to such a dedicated young man. "I always knew the church would be full time for me," she commented.

The Rev. Mr. Faulkner, who plans to further his education this fall, teaches sociology two nights a week at Georgia State College "for experience and extra income."

He also works for the Hospital Services Division of the State Health Department, making surveys of communities in Georgia wanting to build hospitals under the Hill-Burton plan.

Before the couple moved to College Park they lived in Duluth where he was pastor of the Duluth Methodist Church. Mrs. Faulkner was always "the congregation" when he practiced his sermons beforehand.

CHOIR DIRECTOR
A former music teacher, she is choir director and organist for the 10th Street Methodist Church.

They met on the Emory campus in the fall of 1952 when they were students, and the former Barbara Blackburn of Norfolk, Va., and the young theology student were married only a few months later.

"We actually met in Indiana at a National Methodist Youth Convocation at Purdue University, but he doesn't remember meeting me," said Mrs. Faulkner. "I remembered him," she reflected, adding, "I'm mighty glad I did."

LITTLE FREE TIME

The Faulkners have little free time of their own. When they do, they read out loud to each other or listen to their collection of classical records. They prefer a family picnic most of all.

It's seldom they have friends in on Saturday night.

"Sunday is our busiest — and, our best day," Mrs. Faulkner explained.

This statement alone explains why she stands a good chance of realizing her goals.

Scholars Graduate to Family Life

By BESS FURMAN

(Copyright, 1957, by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, June 30—An increasing number of American women scholars are marrying and bearing children, a study has shown.

The study was made by Mrs. Ruth W. Tryon while writing the history of the fellowship awards given by the American Assn. of University Women from 1890 to 1956.

Mrs. Tryon, who was editor of the association's journal for 27 years, sent questionnaires to all who had held these fellowships as part of her survey. Her findings on the subject of marriage merging with careers were recorded in a chapter, "Those Who Marry," in her new book, "Investment in Creative Scholarship."

This woman-only fellowship program, which started with one $500 award in 1890, now numbers 80 awards each year, national and international, with stipends ranging from $2,000 to $4,000.

Awards are based entirely on the proven scholarship of the applicant, and the merit of her projected year of creative study which must extend the boundaries of knowledge.

Up to 1929, Mrs. Tryon reported, no AAUW fellowship had been awarded to a married applicant. In the '30s, less than one-sixth of the recipients were married. In the '40s, it was over one-fourth. In the '50s, the proportion jumped to one-third.

The '40s brought the first awards to women with children. Mrs. Tryon found that fellows with children have now "become a commonplace." Indeed, the application form now carries a section to be filled in by married applicants in which the last item reads: "Plans for care of children during fellowship year. . . ."

The number of fellows who eventually marry also was found to have increased strikingly in recent years. Whereas only one-fourth of those who held awards before 1920 were married at the time the questionnaires were returned during 1954-55, 55 per cent of those of the 1950-53 period were married when the survey was conducted.

From the questionnaires of the younger fellows who have married, these conclusions were drawn:

"The fellow is now more likely than not to marry, or to be already married when she receives the fellowship."

"If she did not have her doctorate when she married, the chances are two out of three she will get it after marriage."

"She wants to continue her professional work, and usually her husband encourages her, or at least cooperates in her efforts to keep on with the work for which she is trained."

The questionnaires brought these reports of difficulties in continuing a career: Opportunities limited by the husband's place of work; rules against employment of married women; cost of child-care help eat up earnings; combination of professional and family life taking heavy toll of time and energy.

Whether or not employed, Mrs. Tryon found, "she (the fellow) has realistically faced the fact that a happy family life entails sacrifice in professional achievement." But "she is neither frustrated nor bitter."

"If sacrifices have had to be made because of her family, she feels that she is putting first things first," the author states. "If she has given up a career, she has surmounted the inclination to feel that her education has been 'wasted.' On the contrary, she has concluded that her training as a scholar enables her to contribute more to her family and her community."

"And in almost all instances, she appears to be enjoying a satisfying family life."

FORMER SECRETARY BONES UP FOR UNIVERSITY JOB
Miss Anne Folger To Be Assistant to Dr. John E. Ivey Jr.

Headed for Adventure in New York

By ELIZABETH MORGAN

Six years ago Miss Anne Folger got tired of answering the phone, pounding a typewriter and taking dictation. She had worked two years as a stenographer at the Southern Regional Education Board (SREB).

So she turned to statistics and job analysis at Lockheed. And then, in 1955, SREB wanted her back, this time as administrative assistant. This title meant that she had more responsibility and fewer routine duties than during her first time around at the board. She took part in office management, handled personnel and helped publish booklets. And like all good bosses, she let her employees "goof off" once in a while.

"TO NEW YORK"

Miss Folger's working life rocked along just fine until, one day last spring, Dr. John E. Ivey Jr. called her into his office. At that time Dr. Ivey was head of SREB. On June 1 he became the executive vice president of New York University.

"Anne," said the well-known educator, "how would you like to live in New York?" And he went on to offer her a job as his administrative assistant at NYU.

Miss Folger relates that she must have "looked shook," but she mustered her poise and said she'd probably consider the job. Now she thinks she made up her mind to go the instant Dr. Ivey offered her the job, but it took four months to settle the matter.

BIG ADVENTURE

At any rate, Miss Folger has ended her job at the board, given up her apartment on Peachtree road and is packing for what she calls her big adventure. Luckily, her roommate, Miss Dean Jones, also is taking a job in New York, and the friends wait to find an apartment in Greenwich Village.

Miss Folger's brown eyes sparkled. "We've maintained a conservative, stable home here, and now we're going to change our way of life. We may get a place on the fringe of the Village where rents are cheaper, but we plan to do the apartment in an inexpensive, interesting way. We decided that we wanted to try something different for a year, a place we could leave with no regrets."

Her roommate comes from Lawrenceville. Miss Folger teased, "We're going to set up 'Magnolia Hall,' a bit of the South in Yankeland."

Miss Folger is no stranger to New York. After she graduated from Salem College in Winston-Salem, N.C., in 1947, she spent a year at Katherine Gibbs, a business school for girls in New York City. In 1949 she moved to Atlanta from New Jersey with her family, and, in her Southern-tinged accent, explained that her roots are in the South.

But former city slicker or not, Miss Folger is excited about going back to the big town. She's already made plans to see the plays, visit all the art museums, go to Coney Island and Jones Beach (where she's never been) and ride the Staten Island Ferry (it still costs a nickel).

WICKED GAME OF PING PONG

The easy-going career girl doesn't know just what she'll do at NYU. She knows she'll be busy, although she said with a twinkle that Dr. Ivey hired her because she plays a wicked game of ping pong. What's more, she's planning to go back to school and get a master's degree in sociology.

And, said the young woman with the forward look, she's going to enjoy having a lot of men around at school. She "wouldn't mind getting married one bit."

Miss Smith, Mr. Starling Are Married

After a wedding trip to Virginia, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Anderson Starling will live at 1505 Fairview Rd.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Robert Anderson Starling of Spartanburg, S.C., and the late Mr. Starling of Cascade, Va. He is a student at Georgia State College and is connected with the Atlanta Paper Co.

The couple was married in the First Presbyterian Church of Leaksville, N.C., by the Rev. John Currie Whitley.

The bride, the former Miss Marjorie Anne Smith, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ivy Smith Jr. of Willow Oaks, Draper, N.C. She was given in marriage by her father.

Maid of honor was Miss Anne Smith of North Wilkesboro, N.C. The bridesmaids were Miss Suzanne Starling of Spartanburg, S.C., Miss Marilyn Osborne of Wilkesboro, N.C., Miss Iva Roberts of Leaksville, N.C., Mrs. Staley Cates of Hickory, N.C., Mrs. John Maragon of Charleston, W. Va., Mrs. Allen Fitts and Miss Elizabeth Wilson, both of Cascade, Va.

Maurice Richardson of Atlanta was best man.

Annie Lou Hardy Shelby Mills Plans To Sail for Europe

Twelve-year-old Shelby Mills is the envy of all her friends and schoolmates, for on July 18 she will sail for Europe. The trip is a gift to Shelby from her maternal grandmother, Mrs. William Elliott of Henderson, Ky., who will accompany her. "Mother wanted to take her to Europe last summer," said Shelby's mother, Mrs. Jere Mills, "but we thought she was a little too young to get much out of the trip. She is already so excited she can hardly sleep or eat."

Mrs. Elliott and Shelby will sail on the Queen Elizabeth and return around Sept. 15 on the Queen Mary.

MRS. EMERSON GARDNER and Mrs. John Stembler are off today for Sea Island, where the former has taken a cottage for the month of July. They will be joined on Wednesday by their husbands for the July 4 weekend.

MR. AND MRS. DARGAN COLE of Cartersville are occupying their beach cottage at Sea Island. They are expecting as their guests for this week Mr. and Mrs. Howard Chilton of Dallas, Tex.

JOINING the Cloister cottage colony at Sea Island during the weekend were Mr. and Mrs. Leon Jones and their daughter, Marilyn. They are guests there of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Harris of Charlotte, who have taken a beach cottage for the month of July.

MR. AND MRS. DANA G. RUMBAUGH will return to Atlanta this week for residence after living for the past year in Los Angeles, where Mr. Rumbaugh served as engineer with an aircraft company. The couple is at present enjoying a two-week tour of the West. Mrs. Rumbaugh is the former Billie Keith of Atlanta.

Mr. Rumbaugh's parents, the R. B. Rumbaughs, will entertain for the pair on Saturday, July 6, in celebration of their first wedding anniversary.

MR. AND MRS. B. W. BROWN, their young daughter, Alice, and Miss Sarah Dean West have returned from a visit to Shreveport, La., where they were guests of Mrs. Brown's and Miss West's brothers, Warren and Charles West Jr., and their families.

During their absence, the Atlantans also motored to Dallas, Tex., where Miss West attended the convention of the National Business Education Assn., and to Pensacola, where they visited Miss Jamie Green.

CONGRATULATIONS are in order for Mrs. George McDonald, who recently won the Edwin Quarles Memorial Award of the Poetry Society of Virginia.

Mrs. McDonald, whose work has appeared in many national magazines under the byline, Ellis McDonald, has a poem in the current issue of the new Georgia Magazine.

VIRGINIA ANNE THOMAS, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Lee Thomas, was christened at the First Methodist Church of Griffin, with Dr. J. W. Segars as officiant. Mrs. Thomas is the former Anne Myree Compton of Atlanta.

Standing as godparents were Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Kellett of Montezuma. The baby was named for Mrs. Kellett, the former Dorothy Virginia Thomas.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thomas of Griffin entertained at luncheon after the service.

L.T. COL. AND MRS. VINCENT D. CUNNINGHAM SR., who have retired from the Salvation Army, were honor guests at a reception in celebration of their golden wedding anniversary.

Hosts were Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Cunningham of 1488 Newton Ave., Southeast.

Col. and Mrs. Cunningham, who are native of Indiana and Missouri, respectively, were married on June 26, 1907, in Macon, Mo. They have lived in Atlanta since 1929 and are making their home at 33 Carter Ave.

The couple has six children, Vincent Cunningham Jr., Miss Elizabeth Cunningham, W. F. Cunningham, Mrs. William J. Ward, Mrs. Louis R. Bowen and Capt. Mary E. Cunningham. They also have 12 grandchildren.

MR. AND MRS. W. G. SEATON and son, Timothy, of 290 Lakemoor Dr. are enjoying a vacation in Mexico. They are making their headquarters at Hotel del Prado in Mexico City.

TO WED IN AUGUST
Miss Juanita Jackson

Jackson, Pittman Plans Told

Mrs. Steve Jackson of Tennessee announces the engagement of her daughter, Juanita, to James H. Pittman of East Point. Mr. Pittman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Pittman of Sandersville.

A graduate of Tennessee High School and Marsh Business College of Atlanta, the bride-elect is employed by the Willingham-Tift Lumber Co. of Atlanta.

Mr. Pittman is a graduate of Sandersville High School and Mercer University. He is associated with the U.S. Department of Agriculture in East Point.

The wedding will take place Aug. 4 at the First Baptist Church of Tennessee.

Miss Loidans Is Bride Of Edgar Gumbert Jr.

At a high noon ceremony solemnized on Saturday at the W. Paces Ferry Road home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Loidans, Miss Eva Loidans became the bride of Edgar Gumbert Jr. of Edinboro, Pa.

The Rev. John Wilson of Columbus read the nuptial service. Mr. Loidans gave his daughter-in-law and she was attended by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Henri Loidans of New Orleans, as matron of honor.

BRIDESMAIDS

Bridesmaids were the bride's cousin, Miss Ann Cox of Birmingham, and Miss Margaret Woolfolk of Columbus.

The bride chose for her marriage a gown of white net and Chantilly lace, designed with a chapel-length train. Her brief veil was attached to a crown of orange blossoms, and she carried a white lace and gauze fan caught with a cluster of white orchids.

BEST MAN

Robert Gumbert of Edinboro, Pa., was his brother's best man, and groomsmen were Henri Loidans and Roland Anderson.

Luncheon was served after

Gordon McKinney of Columbus and Miss Amanda Brown of Lake Providence, La., assisted the hosts in entertaining.

After a honeymoon in the mountains of North Carolina, Mr. Gumbert and his bride will return to Atlanta for residence until September when they sail for England where the former will resume his studies at the University of London.

Add Orange Taste To Juicy Peach Pie

A little grated orange rind and juice added to the filling of a canned cling peach pie accents the delicate flavor. Top peaches with an attractive criss-cross lattice crust. Garnish each serving with a cube of soft cream cheese or spoonful of sour cream.

TO WED ON JULY 13
Miss Letta Gay Barr.

Miss Barr, Mr. Carson To Be Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Barr of Shady Valley, Tenn., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Letta Gay Barr, to James E. Carson of Atlanta, son of Mrs. W. K. Carson of Bristol, Tennessee.

The marriage will be solemnized at 4 o'clock on Saturday, July 13, at the Shady Valley Presbyterian Church.

Miss Barr is a magna cum laude graduate of Emory and Henry College, Emory, Va., and of the Johnston Memorial Hospital School, Abingdon, Va. She is now a member of the nursing staff at Emory Hospital here.

Mr. Carson, a graduate of Bristol, Tenn., High School, also attended Emory and Henry. He served two years with the U.S. Army at Ft. Jackson, S.C., and Ft. Slocum, N.Y.

The future bridegroom is now a member of the sports staff of The Atlanta Constitution.

'IPCO' Treatment Serves Boiler Operations in South

The "IPCO Feedwater Treatment," developed by the Industrial Products Co., 185 Harris St., N.E., is helping many boiler operators in the South combat the expensive problems of corrosion and scaling.

Since it was founded more than 15 years ago, Industrial Products Co. has serviced the boilers in textile mills, laundries and various other processing and industrial concerns throughout the Southern states with their specialized water treatment.

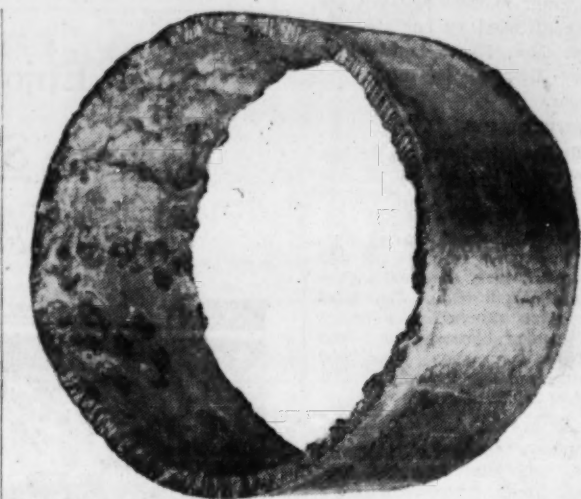

"Every job is different," points out W. T. Leak, general manager of the company. "We won't sell you a material that is guaranteed to work as a 'boiler compound,' because there is no cure-all in treating boilers. Instead, we have a number of different formulas that have proven themselves over a period of time for a particular type of water and for particular types of boilers or steam generators."

The Industrial Products Co. executive explains that boiler operators don't realize that even so-called clear, sparkling water can cause scale deposits, due to the various chemical compounds which are found in practically all water. As part of the water is evaporated, it naturally leaves the solid, dissolved matter in the boiler water. If this matter is of a scale forming nature, two things happen: (1) The water can't take away the heat from the metal due to the insulating effect of the scale, and (2) fuel consumption goes up tremendously.

"This means," explains Mr. Leak further, "that expensive equipment is damaged and operating expenses rise. There are no short cuts to prevent scale like this; it takes intelligent application of chemical fundamentals to prevent it."

Before a boiler is treated, the Industrial Products Co. sends qualified representatives to gather all information on the boiler operations and to submit a sample of raw feedwater for an analysis of the nature of this water is unknown. After a complete report has been made, the Industrial Products Co. then furnishes the client with the proper material for the conditions — and will also send detailed instructions for the use of the product.

IPCO feedwater treatment, when properly used, is specifically designed to eliminate slime and algae, inhibit rust and prevent scale build up.

"After the client has started using this material, our representatives will check his operations at intervals to be sure the boiler is receiving just the right amount of treatment," said Mr. Leak. "This prevents waste while still insuring that the boiler is being protected properly."

The Industrial Products Co. invites inquiries from boiler operators in the South on their IPCO feedwater treatment services and materials. For full details without obligation, telephone JA. 2-9868 or write Industrial Products Co., 185 Harris St., N.E., Atlanta.

Local Concern Offers Prompt Installation

Beautiful, asbestos clapboard-style shingles, installed by the Atlanta Roofing Supply Co., are giving homes in the Atlanta area new distinction and attractiveness — plus the positive protection that only asbestos shingles can give.

The accompanying photograph is one of the recent asbestos clapboard-style siding installations made by Atlanta Roofing Supply Co. In addition to siding and roofing, the firm does complete home modernization and beautification work both inside and out.

Located at 66 Fifth St., NW, the Atlanta Roofing Supply Co. remodeling specialists have established a high standard of quality and excellence in their workmanship. This includes roofing, siding, room additions, painting, papering, repairs, plumbing and wiring. Every job is carefully supervised, and all workmen of this old and established Atlanta firm are bonded for the homeowner's protection. The company is headed by Frank Rowland, a veteran of many years in the home modernization business.

They add rooms, install appliances, make rooms out of porches, basements and attics, put on siding and roofing — in fact, everything to improve the looks and livability of the home is done expertly and at reasonable cost by this well-known home modernization and beautification concern.

In their roofing and siding work the Atlanta Roofing Supply Co. takes pride in their line of asbestos-cement siding shingles, treated with Silicene for greater dirt and weather resistance. These handsome asbestos sidings have a lifelong expectancy. They are made from two practically indestructible materials... asbestos fiber and Portland cement. They cannot burn, will not rot or decay.

"With asbestos shingles applied over your old siding, you get double protection against wind and rain," pointed out Mr. Rowland. Your house is snugger and tighter and holds the heat better in winter. This insulation feature also helps retard the sun's rays in summer, thereby keeping your house cooler.

Ruben Restyles, Remodels, Makes Old Furs Like New

Transforming your present furs into a handsome cape, stole or jacket—at special low prices—is the big, welcome news for Atlanta women from Ruben's, 222 Grand Theater Building, widely known local furrier and designer.

The firm now has in stock the newest capes, stoles and jacket styles for the 1957 season. Also, Max Ruben, owner and manager, will restyle your old coat into a smart-looking cape or jacket at low cost.

Ruben's Fur Shop features excellent storage service for your winter furs. The firm has an enlarged storage facility, which enables it to give better storage service to its many patrons.

"Now is the best time to come in and get fitted in a new cape or jacket," announces Mr. Ruben. "We are offering special low prices for remaking of an old coat into a new-style cape or jacket."

Mr. Ruben explains that "it is foolish to throw away your old coat just because it is out of style." He can remodel your coat or make whatever changes are necessary to bring it up to the current fashionable look. In remodeling, he first makes a fitting of the cloth material to assure a perfect fit of the remodeled coat.

Ruben's also features cleaning and glazing of furs to bring out their natural luster and beauty.

Mr. Ruben has been engaged in the fur business for many years—practically all of his life—and he extends a most cordial invitation to the women of Atlanta to visit his shop in the Loew's Grand Theater Building and select their cape, stole or jacket for summertime wear. Call him at JA. 2-8751 and make an appointment to see his attractive line. Or just drop in anytime during the day.

Take Films to Gaston Snapshot Stations Here

A vacation lasts a lot longer than the usual two weeks when it is recorded in photographs, over which the family and friends can exclaim through the years to come. So just about everybody that goes on a vacation trip, wherever it may be, takes along his camera hoping to get some fine snapshots to bring home.

But it is important that these be good pictures, because in many instances you can never take the same picture over again.

So, people in the "know" take the films after they have been exposed and carefully pack the rolls in their baggage to bring back to their own neighborhood Gaston Snapshot Stations for processing. They don't want to take chances with their prize pictures, and they know that Gaston Snapshot Stations have provided dependable, reliable service for over 34 years.

Gaston Photo Service, Inc., in its new modern plant at 580 Dutch Valley Rd., N.E., Atlanta, is equipped to process not only black and white film and prints, but they have the only color laboratory in this area built specifically for color. They have recently installed the only color printing machine in Georgia for automatically making color prints from Kodachrome negatives.

Fast service is provided on all work promptly.

"FOND MEMORIES"—Good, clear pictures help preserve the fond memories of that happy vacation or weekend in the years to come. Gaston Snapshot Stations provide dependable, reliable developing service . . . black and white or color. See story.

So, when you head off on that well-earned "two weeks" or for any outing, be sure to take your trusty camera and a hand full of fresh film from your neighborhood Gaston Station . . . and bring your exposed film back to be processed by Gaston . . . the folks who have been giving reliable, dependable service in this area for over 34 years.

Roaches Are Cunning—But No Match for New 'No-Roach'

The common cockroach does not travel alone. He is invariably part of a tribe, like his partner in crime, the ant.

So when you see a roach in your home, destroying him merely serves notice on the other destructive pests to hide from sight.

When you see even one roach, you need Johnston's NO-ROACH, the effective, safe, new scientific discovery, right away.

No-Roach is a liquid which you apply with a brush. Within minutes it dries to form a colorless, odorless contact insecticide, that stays effective for months.

Apply No-Roach to cupboard walls, baseboards, near sink and cabinets, on pipes, and wherever you see cockroaches.

Brush No-Roach around table legs and counter tops, across window sills and door sills, and across art trails. Ants will not cross the coating. Pour a few drops into ant hills.

No-Roach is also effective against resistant roaches, bedbugs, silverfish, waterbugs, spiders, and other crawling insects.

Remember, when you use Johnston's NO-ROACH, you don't have to move dishes, pots and pans, or breathe harmful vapors, as you must with contaminating sprays. Apply No-Roach just where you want it, the invisible coating stays effective for months. NO-ROACH, the brush-on insecticide, is preferred by good housekeepers.

Be safe and be sure with No-Roach. Eight ounces, 89 cents; pint, $1.69; quart, $2.98. Available at Rich's, Big Apple, Colonial Stores, Lanes, Jacobs, Sears, Walgreen's, and your local drug stores.

STAYS EFFECTIVE FOR MONTHS—New Johnston's No-Roach, the liquid you apply with brush. It stays effective for months and is effective against roaches, bedbugs, silverfish, water bugs, spiders and other insects. Five Emory University faculty members have been awarded research grants totaling $111,800 by the U.S. Public Health Service, it was announced by Ernest M. Allen, chief of the Division of Research grants.

Grants have been awarded to Dr. J. H. U. Brown, associate professor of physiology; Dr. W. D. Belt, assistant professor of anatomy; Dr. Ernest L. Hunt, associate professor of biology; Dr. R. A. Bartholomew, and Dr. O. D. Harvey, associate professor of operative dentistry.

The grants will enable these men to institute or to carry on research projects during the coming year.

(ADVERTISEMENT) WORLD'S SMALLEST HEARING AIDS HELP THOUSANDS

Sonotone's newest hearing aids—the smallest in the world—are being worn by thousands of hard-of-hearing persons who never thought they could be helped so easily, it was reported today.

The midjet Sonotones are being fitted to more persons than ever before in the history of this pioneer hearing aid company, according to Howard H. Burns, Manager of Sonotone of Atlanta.

"Sonotone has truly broken the sound barrier with the smallest hearing aids in the world," according to Mr. Burns. "Everyone who sees them is amazed that a hearing aid can be so small and yet deliver so much sound. Now we can really help all those persons who resisted getting a hearing aid until the tiniest was available."

The two new Sonotones weigh only half an ounce each, including the smallest battery ever used in a hearing aid. Just thumbnail size, they climax 25 years of research by Sonotone to produce a hearing aid so small and light.

One of the new models, the Sonotone "222", is the first hearing aid worn entirely in the ear. There is no cord and no extra "button." The entire hearing aid fits snugly in the contours of the ear. All sounds are picked up by the hearing aid in the ear and transmitted directly to the hearing nerves. It is worn invisibly by women and is barely noticeable on men.

The other model, the Sonotone "333", is basically the same hearing aid but is adaptable to a variety of wearing methods. Many men and women prefer to wear their hearing aids tucked behind the ear and the Sonotone "333" is ideal for this style. The entire one-piece instrument nestles inconspicuously behind the ear, with a thin, transparent tube transmitting the sound to a special eartip buried in the ear. Women can also fasten this Sonotone in the hair and both men and women can attach it to their own, regular eyeglasses.

"Either of these new Sonotones can solve all the problems of Summer fashions for both men and women," Mr. Burns points out. "The girls can wear strapless bathing suits and sport clothes because the hearing aid is all on the head. Men can play golf or tennis, even paint the house, without worrying about their hearing aid."

Production of these models is now at peak at Sonotone's headquarters in Elmsford, N. Y., to satisfy the demands of deafened persons for the new Sonotone triumph—the smallest hearing aids in the world. Complete information may be obtained at the local Sonotone office, 1101 William-Oliver Building.

NATION'S WEATHER—NEW YORK, June 30— Scattered showers or thundershowers are due Monday in the Rockies, central plains, Florida and most of the area from Missouri southward to the Gulf and eastward to the Atlantic. The rest of the nation will have generally fair weather. Pennsylvania and southern New Jersey will be warmer, but elsewhere there will be little temperature change.

Guns Fell 5 At Cuban Peace Rally

SANTIAGO, Cuba, June 30 (UP)—A running gun battle on the outskirts of the city killed five persons and wounded three others today.

The violence broke out while a government orator at a "peace rally" in the heart of the city was calling on the political opposition to abandon violence as a political weapon.

Two soldiers patrolling in a jeep were killed and a third was wounded by a group of unidentified civilians in a stolen car.

A police car intercepted the fleeing assailants and three of them were killed in the ensuing gun battle. Two bystanders, including a seven-year-old boy, were wounded.

There were no incidents reported at the rally itself as troops armed with automatic weapons patrolled the city to keep rebel sympathizers from wrecking it.

Some 5,000 government supporters thronged Céspedes Park in this capital of rebellious Oriente Province. The atmosphere was tense from two previous nights of bomb explosions and arson.

No Bomb, Hotel Replies to Report Of Dallas Police

DALLAS, Tex., June 30 (UP)—The Dallas police department reported tonight that a bomb had been found in the Statter-Hilton Hotel. But the hotel immediately denied it.

Asst. Manager J. Williams said there was nothing in the report. He said the hotel had been thoroughly searched and that no bomb was found.

"The report was probably made by someone mentally unbalanced," Williams said.

Williams said the report that a bomb was in the hotel was made to the hotel by telephone. He said he didn't know who took the call.

"We have to take all precautions," Williams said.

Police dispatcher Sgt. Wilson F. Warren said he understood the report came from a Negro porter who told officers a bomb was discovered in the ballroom.

Geo. Wade Dies; Industrialist, 74

OSTERVILLE, Mass., June 30 (UP)—George Garretson Wade, 74, Cleveland, Ohio, industrialist, died unexpectedly last night while attending a dance at the Wianco Country Club.

Dr. Robert Wells said death was due to coronary thrombosis. Wade and his wife, Irene, had been vacationing at this Cape Cod summer resort with a Cleveland neighbor, John P. McWilliams.

Wade was a 1904 graduate of Yale University.

NEGRO NEWS

Services Of SBA Are Cited

By CLAUDE GEORGE SR.
James F. Hollingsworth, director of the Southeastern Regional Office of the Small Business Agency, said this week that it is of vital importance that the public be kept adequately informed of the purposes of the Agency, created by an Act of Congress in 1953.

"It is for this purpose," he explained, "that we have moved into larger quarters at 90 Fairlie St., and so that we may have more room here to accomplish larger services in assisting owners of small businesses in this region with management and technical problems."

Hollingsworth pointed out that many small Negro business firms in this area are taking advantage of the services of the agency.

5th Anniversary

The Hughes Spalding Pavilion at Grady Memorial Hospital will celebrate its fifth anniversary July 7, according to Charles Wilson, supervisor.

Wilson said that no formal anniversary program is planned, but that they would wait until the potential program for the hospital is completed.

"Although the hospital continues to make progress in the line of services," Wilson said, "we have had more patients this year than ever before."

Child Service Program

The advisory committee of the Child Service Assn., Inc., met last Thursday and decided to close its activities until fall. At the same time the committee adopted a five-point program covering September through December, entitled "The Needs of Children."

Miss Catherine Boling succeeds Mrs. Ernestine E. Merriam as executive secretary of the committee.

Mental Health

Although one out of every 20 persons will be in a mental institution before he dies, the remaining 19 constitute the important problem, Dr. Wilfred Bloomberg told Atlanta University students this week.

Director of the Southern Regional Council on Mental Health Training and Research, Dr. Bloomberg urged teachers to learn to recognize the hidden clues to mental disturbance, in order that they may help children under their care before it is too late.

A Rhyme a Day

"Mrs. Emma Buhl DeHart who died recently of malnutrition left more than a quarter of a million dollars in cash hidden in her cluttered apartment."—News item.

Now, let us drag our soap-box out . . . and mount it while we talk about . . . those foolish people who deprive . . . themselves, as long as they're alive . . . of many things they could afford . . . they are the frightened folks who hoard . . . their money for a rainy day . . . while most of us throw ours away.

Yet, all of us have time to spend . . . which might be helpful to a friend . . . and each one has some cheerful word . . . which, oftentimes, would be preferred . . . to gifts of silver or of gold . . . for charity is often cold . . . while those words of encouragement . . . give warmth whenever they are spent.

You get the drift of what we mean . . . while other people hoard the "green" . . . we're also stingy in our way . . . in what we have or what we say . . . that we could spend and never miss . . . but, let us put an end to this . . . will someone kindly lend a hand . . . and take me off this "soap-box stand."

Words of Psalms Express Our Personal Experience

QUESTION: As I read the Psalms I am impressed with their poetic beauty but how can I apply to my own life the experiences of others; David, for instance? T.K.H.

The facts behind filter-tip cigarettes

Do filter-tip cigarettes really give you protection against lung cancer? Is any one filter more effective than another? Why are harsher, lower-grade tobaccos (which often contain more tars and nicotine) being used more and more widely in filter-tips?

July Reader's Digest answers these and other questions of vital importance. The dramatic findings are based on a thorough scientific survey and new laboratory tests conducted especially for The Reader's Digest.

Fulton Courts Slowing for Summer Recess

Fulton County's courts this week will slow down their operations for their annual summer recess.

Friday was the last day for any regular court sessions and no jury business will be taken up again until September, except for a special week in August set for criminal cases in Superior Court. The high court order of business calls for handling of uncontested non-jury divorce cases on July 8 and 9 before Judges Virlyn B. Moore and E. E. Andrews.

Judge Jesse M. Wood on July 25 will set the criminal trial calendar for the week beginning Aug. 5. Scheduled to preside that week are Judges Durwood T. Pye, J. C. Tanksley and Luther Alverson. Until regular jury trial sessions resume in Superior Court on Sept. 9, the high court judges will handle only emergency motions and pleas.

In Criminal Court, Judges Charles Bruce and J. Everett Thrift will alternate in two-
